IPI/Skyscraper introduces our One Step construction loan. Great rates. Zero points. Single closing.

At IPI Skyscraper, we understand just how difficult it can be to buy land and to build your dream house. Typically, you'd start with a short-term land loan, then go to a construction loan and finally an "end loan" or conventional mortgage. And typically, you'd pay points or fees every step of the way. Not to mention the aggravation of separate closings.

Not anymore. IPI is proud to announce our One Step construction loan. It's the only zero-point, single-closing land/construction/end loan available that is underwritten entirely on site in our Main Street, Bridgehampton office. This comprehensive program offers you a single interest rate for all three phases of your project, from beginning to end. And most important, IPI locks in your interest rate—in advance, at no additional cost—for 12 months, not for 60 days like other brokers or banks.

We can offer innovative programs like our One Step construction loan because we've consolidated our loan officers, processors, underwriters and closers under one roof. Our experienced mortgage professionals represent more than 100 preferred lenders, so we can find the best possible program at the best possible price for you. And because IPI is the largest mortgage broker in the Northeast, you get the best of two worlds: New York big and Hamptons local.

Wamsutta Sheet Sale

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Counting The Hamptons

Trying To Apply The 2000 Census To This Place Gives A Very Complicated Answer

By Dan Rattiner

The census is underway and, as you know, it is important that everybody in our community be counted. The big Federal pie of money is divided up based on population. The more population, the more money comes our way.

On the other hand, both LIPA and Bell Atlantic say it can be very confusing counting heads here on the east end. Do you count tourists? Weekenders who claim their vacation homes as second homes? Motel units? The population almost quadruples in the summertime.

Well, here are the preliminary census results for the East End, broken down by category. Although we have obtained these results by underhanded means, it is okay because we are a newspaper filled with crusading journalists anxious only to get to the truth.

CENSUS REPORT FOR THE FIVE EAST END TOWNS, 2000:

White Protestant, family goes back to the Mayflower: 22,861

White Protestant, everybody else: 34,711

White Catholic, fourth generation Irish and proud of it: 5,802

White Catholic, and just off the boat Irish: 1,207

White Catholic, Italian American and you betta wash what u say: 4,322

White Catholic, everybody else: 11,713

White Jewish, family settled here as merchants prior to 1910: 2,114

White Jewish, year-round locals: 806

White Jewish summer people: 7,913

Black Jewish: 23

Black Christian and local: 21,845

Black Christian weekenders: 3,867

Muslim and harmless: 11,301

Muslim and fanatic: 43

Hispanic: 14,888

Hispanic but invisible: 15,435

Gays: 9,462

Alternative lifestyle people: 3,578

Bonackers: 2,814

Baymen: 33

Polish Catholic farmers: 151

Real estate people: 10,014

Although we have obtained these results by underhanded means, it is okay because we are a newspaper filled with crusading journalists anxious only to get to the truth.

With four brothers in the acting business, most of whom either have homes out here or visit out here, it seems that the Baldwins will ultimately be seen as the American acting family, as the Barrymores were seen in the first half of the twentieth century. They are brothers after all, and they are the marrying kind. The next generation should keep the Baldwin name, therefore, and there should be (could be) plenty of them. Anyway, the latest appearance of a Baldwin was in an M&M commercial. A Baldwin says something stupid. "Which Baldwin are you?" asks the Blue M&M. "Steven," Steven says. "Then you should know better, Steven," the M&M says.

Then there is Alec Baldwin, the first Baldwin Brother, on his way from his home in Amagansett to Hawaii for his Pearl Harbor shoot. He stopped to have a dance or two with wife Kim Basinger, who was at the Rainbow Room celebrating her new movie I Dreamed of Africa.

Bill Blass, who recently retired, has been diagnosed with cancer of the tongue. They say it is treatable. We wish him all the best.

An attempt by Nike Sneakers to rent a house in the Hamptons as a party house for sports celebrities and their attending bevy of women has run afoul of local sensibilities and has gone off into the night with its tail between its legs. On the other hand, now there is a proposed Yahoo! House, as in yahoo.com and the plan is you won't have to search hard to get what you are looking for. There will be a screening room, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, a gym, different chefs every night, tennis courts and basketball. Publicist Alexandre Wilson even knows exactly where the Yahoo! Synergy Spa is. It is an 11,000 square foot castle deep in the woods of Water Mill – apparently not the Wilzig Castle though – and there will be Britain's Channel 4 in residence, along with photographer Patrick MacMullin, deejay Samantha, Jet East owner Andrew Sassoon, several commercial sponsors including a champagne, a French sparkling water, some clothing, a resident journalist and several fashion models to be named at a later date. "No one's even going to know about it," says Wilson. Well they do now.

There was a party last Tuesday in Manhattan for CNN Veep Gail Evens, on the publication of her new book Play Like a Man, Win Like a Woman. Hamptonites in attendance included Walter Isaacson of Time, Moneyline anchor Willow Bay, TV's Star Jones, Financial guru Faith Popcorn, designer Nicole Miller, and Regis Philbin of Regis Philbin.

"We're throwing a gala party for Dan Rattiner at the fabulous Riggio Estate and you are invited!

"But shhhhh...don't breathe a word about this to Dan!"

Mark your calendar for Saturday, June 10th, 6:00 to 8:00 p.m.

That's when the Hamptons will see one of the most elegant and festive cocktail parties of this or any season.

If you enjoy Dan's columns and have made Dan's Papers part of your Hamptons ritual, then please join us and help us tell Dan how much he has meant to our East End community for all these years.

Your hosts will be Louise and Leonard Riggio at their magnificent Bridgehampton estate, Minden.

If you've never seen Minden, it will take your breath away. It's one of the most spectacular estates in the Hamptons, an American castle. And what a grand celebration we shall have there!

But please don't talk up this party to Dan.

No, it's not a surprise. He knows about it. It's just that Dan is a modest, soft-spoken guy who hates to have a big fuss made over him.

And at this party, we are going to make a fuss.

Here's why. This is Dan's 40th year of publishing Dan's Papers. Forty years of doing anything deserves to be commended, let alone 40 years of meeting weekly deadlines and turning out, with consistent excellence, the Hampton's most popular newspaper.

That's why a group of Dan's friends are organizing this party and inviting the entire East End community to join with us to say, "Thanks, Dan, for letting us be part of your passionate love affair with the East End. It's been a great run and we hope it goes for at least another 40 years!"

The Honorary Chairman for this gala affair is Tom Wolfe. Co-Chairs are Muriel Siebert and Wilbur Ross.

The guest list reads like a Hamptons Who's Who, and we've retained Linda Shapiro to make sure the party is first class all the way.

At the event, Dan will be presented with the first PONY (Pride Of New York) Award, which will become an annual Hamptons tradition honoring those who've made their fellow New Yorkers proud.

All proceeds from this benefit will go to the Maryhaven Center of Hope, one of Dan's favorite charities, which specializes in helping children and adults with developmental disabilities on the East End and throughout Suffolk.

So come join us at Minden for an enchanted evening of light jazz, fine wine, scrumptious food by Starr Boggs, elegance and a few fun surprises that will make this a party neither you nor Dan will soon forget!

Reservations are strictly limited at $150 per person. For information or reservations, please see below....

Land Grabs

Three Cases Of Property Going Through Hot Little Hands In Shinnecock Hills

By Dan Rattiner

There was a news conference at Southampton College on Thursday, at which a group of environmentalists stated their case for buying a 102-acre parcel of land up in the Tuckahoe section of Shinnecock. The meeting was attended not only by the environmentalists but also by some Shinnecock Indian Nation protesters who's concern was a sixty-two acre parcel adjacent to their reservation they claim is sacred and it was also attended for all I know, by the ghosts of the former members of the Church of All Angels, whose land has been seized by the town and auctioned off apparently because a letter went astray.

There was also a box turtle named Dante who had written on his back, "Save My Home."

The Shinnecock area at the moment seems to be Earth Central for various sorts of slights of hand involving the law and the land. There's never been anything like it.

The environmentalists were there because they don't want a man named Charles Holmes putting twenty-eight houses on the 102-acre site he owns just north of the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club. For centuries this has been known as the Tuckahoe Swamp but Holmes, hoping for the sound of the cash register ringing, has changed the name to West Neck Woods. He's calling the swamp a woods and there's some truth to it because he intends to cluster his twenty-eight homes in a wooded area and donate the remaining sixty-two acres of swamp to a nature preserve.

There was also a box turtle named Dante who had written on his back, "Save my home."

The environmentalists want the whole 102 acres.

"There's no use in having $16 million dollars to buy large parcels of land when there's nothing left to buy," Robert DeLuca, the president of the Group for the South Fork said at the press conference. He was referring to the fact that $16 million dollars has been raised to buy big open spaces such as this 102-acre site, but as near as he or anyone else can see, this may be one of the last ones. The money won't do any good when there isn't anything to do it good on.

Just prior to this news conference, Town Supervisor Vincent Cannuscio, good politician that he is, announced that he had written a letter to Charles Holmes offering to appraise the property in question for the purpose of the town buying it. The only problem with this is, at the same time the town might do the appraisal, the planning board would be considering the sub-division and if they approve it, the appraisal would be much greater than it would be if they don't, though it would be illegal for the Planning Board to delay a vote or make a decision simply to keep the cost of the purchase down.

As for the Shinnecock Nation who were protesting at this news conference, striking tribal drums and so forth, they were trying to keep the spotlight on the sixty-two acre parcel across from their reservation, which a developer is claiming is unsacred land and upon which he wishes to build houses. A judge ruled in favor of the developer three weeks ago saying when a man files to build a sub-division somewhere, there's only a limited amount of time in which a neighbor can protest and that time had long since past: the amount of time is one year.

The developer also claimed that shovel full after shovel full of land was turned over by some environmentalists he had hired to see if they couldn't find any evidence of it having been sacred in any way. All together, the hired environmentalists made about 350 shovel fulls, which is about one every quarter acre. And he found no burial grounds, no sacred activity and the only Indian thing he found on the site, was a wampum making factory which the ancient Indians used to create these beaded necklaces that Indians would give to neighboring tribesmen so they couldn't come around and start a war with them. A former wampum-making site is not much in the sacred department.

The ghosts attending this meeting came from the membership of the Church of All Angels, which was built around 1894 but burned down around 1905. It was never rebuilt and the parishioners started going to another church in town after a while. Then the old church records were merged into the new church records and a lawyer announced to anyone interested that henceforth anything pertaining to the Church of All Angels would now be handled by St John's Episcopal Church.

Unfortunately a party at the time not interested enough to make inquiries was the Town of Southampton. Ninety-five years later, which was three years ago, in doing a survey to reassess various properties in town, they came upon this parcel of land, sent out a letter to the old church and when there was no response from the old church (since it has disbanded), declared the land abandoned. An auction was held on the courthouse steps and the two acre parcel was purchased by a Southampton resident Alexanderos Demetriades, who naturally enough planned to put a house or two there.

Somewhere in the thicket on this property, however, there's supposed to be a monument or a large rock with some writing on it explaining that the property was church property just waiting for the day when another church could be built there since the first one burned down. There are also pictures of the old church around. But so far the town is not impressed.

As for the box turtle? He didn't seem to know much about any of this now-you-see-it-now-you-don't land game and just spent the news conference rummaging around in his box, apparently looking for food. •

Dinner At The Cut

The Service Is Slow In Sagaponack And Then They Bring It All Out At Once

By Dan Rattiner

Last Wednesday the Town trustees let Sagaponack Pond. They do this about twice a year whenever the level of the pond gets too high and the water threatens to back up into the basements of the people who live around the pond. No announcement is made about the letting of the pond, nor is any made about the letting of Mecox and Georgica Pond, where they have the same trouble. They just go down and have a look at the height of the pond and if it seems to be too high, they call one of the heavy construction companies and send them down to the beach to make a cut opening the pond to the sea.

The construction people bring steam shovels down to the beach on flat bed trucks and, working quickly, make the cut in about three hours. The distance is only about a hundred feet and the way they do it is they dig a small trench in the sand by the ocean, – they do this at low tide – and they dig closer and closer to the pond. It gets deeper and deeper because though the trench bottom is flat, the beach rises as you go away from the sea, as you know. It can be as much as six feet deep and three feet across when the bulldozer finally gets up by the pond. Then, after telling everyone to stand back, they'll take one last steam shovel scoopful and the sand barrier wall will break and the pond will come rushing down out toward the ocean with a great roar. It's like letting water out of a bathtub.

It might take as long as a week for the pond to get back to normal. These ponds average three miles in length and about three quarters of a mile wide. Some bathtub.

"After awhile the fish either died or got away... and the gulls went back to sitting on the sand, waiting for the next group of unlucky creatures"

Needless to say, the moment the pond breaks through can be quite dramatic. In the summertime, it can attract surfers, people with rubber boats, people with kayaks or just people who are good swimmers to negotiate what is a pretty fair imitation of an amusement park shoot the flume ride.

This is quite a contrast with colonial times. No steam shovels then. They'd ring the church bells to announce that every able-bodied man had better get down to the beach with a shovel. Failure to show up could bring a fine, a whipping or a day in the stocks. Before that, by the way, who let the ponds? And who milked the cows when the udders got full? Good questions.

In any case, I come down to the ocean beach almost every day, stopping at the Sagg Main Store for sustenance. The Sagg Main Beach is only about three miles from my office. Eight months out of the year, from October to May, I go out onto the sand in a four wheel drive SUV and park right there by the surf itself. During the four summer months I park in the lot and walk out to the beach, hauling a lawn chair and either a lightweight laptop or a tape recorder. I stay an hour or two and I write the stories that you read in these pages. In fact, I'm writing this down at Sagg Main Beach.

Two weeks from now is the big changeover; the eight months of beach driving ends and the four months of parking and walking down to the beach begins.

There is a sign at the end of the parking lot which reads "No Vehicles Allowed On the Beach After the Friday Before Memorial Day Weekend."

Last Wednesday, though, was a treat, one of those days when the Trustees let the pond. I got there about 4:30 in the afternoon. And from the tracks in the sand and the time of low tide, which I have on a sheet in my car, they had apparently been there four hours earlier.

It was a particularly spectacular letting. The water was rushing out with such violence that when it met the high surf of the ocean, it created waves that almost stood straight up, like chiffon. Then the chiffon would collapse down into the next wave.

There was a group of sea gulls standing on the sand on the far side of the cut from where I parked and it didn't take long for me to figure out what they were waiting around for. A school of small fish, maybe a thousand of them, were swimming in the pond at peace with the world one minute, and the next found themselves sucked out through the channel and into the sea. What a surprise. The fish leaped and thrashed about and the sea gulls were up in the air cackling happily and dive bombing at them.

It was such an easy, free meal for the seagulls and it also seemed to be a game. One of them would swoop down, grab a fish in his bill and then fly away with two or three gulls chasing after him. He might get a couple of bites and then to get rid of his pursuers, drop the remains of his fish into the sea. The other gulls would dive down to get it.

It was, while it lasted, a ferocious bit of business that reminded me of one of those contests where a winner gets twenty minutes to take as much as he can out of a supermarket. It was also carnage on a grand scale. As a result, I thought it was probably not a good time to hop out of the car and walk the dog who was with me.

After awhile the fish either died or got away and there weren't anymore and the gulls went back to sitting on the sand, waiting for the next group of unlucky creatures to get sucked out to sea.

When it was over, I did get out of the car and go for a walk. And when I came back I found that my SUV had been joined by the jeep of one of those serious surfcasters that keeps his has rods on the roof and his fish buckets on the front. The fisherman was in waders and throwing his line far out into the ocean. He pretty much ignored me.

A second surf fisherman's vehicle arrived at the beach, and then a third. Some of these fishermen have CB radios in their cars and when a surfcaster down at the ocean sees a flock of gulls circling around by the shore he'll get on the CB and announce it and the others come down. There are certainly far more fish under those birds than any one surfcaster could possibly catch.

Anyway, I walked around among the fisherman, admiring all their gear for awhile and after ten minutes became aware that they hadn't yet caught a single thing. Across the cut the seagulls were observing them as well. I think their eyes were on the bait.

I debated telling one of the fishermen they should have been there fifteen minutes ago, but then thought better of it. The pond would be roaring through the cut for many days and as we used to say on the subway platforms in New York City, there will be another train coming through in a minute. •

Men Vs. Women

It Is Them Against Us, Or Us And Them Against The Concept, Or Something

By Dan Rattiner

Who are women, anyway? As a male person on this earth I have wondered about this for as long as I can remember. Sometimes I think I have more in common with my sheepdog than I do with the women in my life. And if you know the women in my life, you will know that they agree with this assessment.

Under the circumstances, I have been collecting information about women, about men, and about the differences between them. In an age of politically correct thinking, when everybody is supposed to be equal, the mere possession of this file could earn me ten years in jail. Nevertheless, I have this file and it is getting thicker and thicker and the time has come for me to come out of the closet and report what is in it.

Here goes.

Recent marketing studies have shown that there is a dramatic difference in how men and women appreciate music. People who collect music, in CD, tape or record form, are invariably men. People who go to concerts to listen to opera or Beethoven or Mozart are largely women.

Do women like music performed live while men prefer it recorded? This doesn't appear to be the explanation.

Germaine Greer, the British feminist, wrote an essay in an English magazine in which she stated that the reason "Why Women Don't Buy CD's" (the title of her article) was that men aren't really interested in the music at all but in the status they achieve by collecting it. This resulted in a letter to the editor in a subsequent issue from music reviewer Mike Silverton who had this to say about his wife: "While my wife manages the installation of millions of dollars worth of electronic equipment as vice president of a construction company, she has never turned on our stereo system and does not like classical music very much. I'm not sure she knows where the volume knob is, though God knows I've pointed it out often enough."

An extraordinary phenomenon, however, is that though it has been the men that have traditionally been buying the classical CD's, there is one category of classical CD's, featuring exactly the same music that men buy, that is now being bought by women in droves. It is the Classics By Request CD's offered by mail from the women's clothing chain Victoria's Secret.

My theory is that women like to go to concerts so they can put on their jewelry and nice clothes, look beautiful and show off their men. And the Victoria's Secret CD is to help set the candlelight mood later.

Before I go any further, I would like to make a disclaimer. We are talking about the Bell Curve here. You will find many women who are avid CD collectors and couldn't care less about a concert. And you will find many men avid concert goers who have never bought a record. But we are talking about averages here. The Bell Curve.

The study about music is only based on observation. But in my file I also have hard, empirical facts to support the differences between men and women.

Scientists have discovered there is a chemical difference in the brains of men and women and how they respond to the seasons. There is a secretion called Melatonin which comes from the pineal gland. Nobody knows a whole lot about it but in other animals it is secreted in far greater amounts in the springtime when the hours of sunlight in a day begin to lengthen. Now it has been found that in women it is secreted in far greater amounts in the springtime, but in men the amount remains the same as in winter.

"When it comes to seasonal change, men just don't get it," said Dr. Thomas Weir of the National Institutes of Mental Health in Bethesda, Maryland where the study was done.

Another study, done at Yale, showed that women used both sides of their brain when performing a particular mental task they had set up involving rhyming, while men only used the left side. Although both men and women did the task equally well, women, it seemed, would still be able to do it even after suffering damage – for example a stroke – to the left side of the brain.

There was a study recently at the University of Pennsylvania where it was for the first time shown, scientifically, that men simply do not understand women. Both men and women were shown photographs of people who were either happy or sad. The photographs were close-ups so you could look right into the eyes of the person being photographed. Presumably it would be easy for everyone to notice the difference between happiness and sadness.

Astonishingly, it wasn't. The women were able to note the differences when the photographs were of men and the men were able to note the differences when the photographs were of men. But when the photographs were of women expressing sadness, the women got it but the men didn't.

"A woman's face had to be really sad for men to see it," Dr. Rupert Gur of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine said. "The subtle expressions went right by them." In another brain study at the University of Pennsylvania, it was determined that men have more brain activity in the more ancient and primitive regions of the limbic system while women have more activity in the newer and more complex parts of the brain, which are involved in symbolic actions.

In explaining the difference, a scientist had this to say: "If a dog is angry and jumps and bites, that's an action.

If he is angry and just bares his fangs and growls, that's more symbolic."

Here are other items and notes in this file.

Marcia Clark, the O. J. Simpson prosecutor, makes twice as much as much money as her ex-husband, the computer programmer, but has it that he pay her child support rather than the other way around. Recently she asked for an increase in this child support because she said her recent intense work load required her to not be around as much and she would therefore have to hire more child care. In response, her husband sued for custody.

I have a yellow folder promoting the medical products of Boericke and Tafel, "America's oldest homeopathic pharmaceutical firm." The brochure promotes the products they sell only for women "because women are different from men."

They have five products, especially for women, including one entitled Second Wind which relieves tension, anxiety, physical fatigue and the jitters that apparently men don't get. They have another product which quells "over-excitement."

It is my opinion that we would have national health care today if Hillary hadn't acted like such a bitch.

Why is it that when a woman and a man approach an automobile, even if it is the woman's automobile, the man drives?

Many women get nuts when the moon is full.

Many women get nuts once a month.

Many women just get nuts.

Women cannot give directions over the telephone. They hand the phone to a male person who gives directions. (Studies have consistently shown that men do better on tests involving and solving spatial relationships, particularly three dimensional spatial relationships.)

Women, on average in America, live five years longer than men. This makes no sense. It is also very unjust.

Given all of the above, however, in having to put up with us men, perhaps they deserve it.●

Flight 800 Eyewitness Reports Finally Released By FBI Contradict CIA Version

By Jerry Cimisi

Nearly four years after the tragic explosion of TWA Flight 800, killing 230 on board, The Federal Bureau of Investigation has released aproximately 750 eyewitnesses reports, hundreds of which contain sightings of a "flare-like" object ascending from the sea or land (depending on the eyewitness's perspective), followed by a midair explosion.

The fact that many people in various locations saw what appeared to be an object ascending to meet Flight 800 is hardly news; many eyewitnesses over the past years have spoken openly about what they saw. What is pertinent is that when one reads these "302" FBI interviews, their cumulative testimony refutes the "explanations" the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), the FBI and CIA gave as the mechanics of the explosions.

The official conclusion was, simply, that the "missile" so many people thought they saw rising up (or streaking across the sky horizontally) was actually Flight 800 itself, after the center wing fuel tank exploded and which somehow caused the plane to rise several thousand feet before a subsequent explosion, after which the plane fell to the ocean.

Each eyewitness report is designated with a number. The names of eyewitness are blacked out, to protect their privacy.

But Witness 88 (among others), saw a "flare" and, separately, Flight 800 itself. This witness was fishing in Moriches Inlet. The sound of an explosion alerted him to something in the southwest that was ascending. He at first thought it was fireworks. He watched it climb as it left a wispy trail of smoke. Soon the smoke trail stopped and became bright red. Now the witness was surmising it was a distress flare from a boat. Then it seemed to reach its highest point and proceeded to cross the sky from east to west.

It was then that Witness 88 saw an airplane come into view. The "flare" met the plane and there was an explosion.

Another eyewitness who saw the plane being met by an object is someone we can refer to by name, as the first time she spoke to the press about it was to this reporter in May, 1998. The night TWA 800 went down, Lisa Perry was at her father's beach house on Fire Island. "I saw the missile,"she said. At the time she saw a plane in the sky she also saw "Something moving north to south over the dunes... of Fire Island. It was shiny, like a new dime; it looked like a plane without wings... It was as if there was a flame at the back of it... It moved much faster than the plane. The silver object took a left turn and went up to the plane. The plane stopped for a moment as something would when it had suffered an impact, not just an explosion. Then it began to fracture...You could see the spaces in between the plane [as it began to break apart]. A moment later there was another explosion and the plane broke jaggedly in the sky... I told the FBI the nose had come off; I told them this before the Navy pulled it out of the water."

Witness 145: From Bay Shore she saw a plane offshore and a object proceeding upwards towards the plane. The object trailed gray-white smoke. Then the object hit the plane. The plane fell toward the water and seemed to break in two.

Again, both Witness 497, 145 and Perry saw, separately, an airplane and a missile-like object. And none saw the plane rise after it was hit.

Roland Perry of Center Moriches also saw an ascending streak, an explosion and the plane fall from the sky. "...the plane went straight down and it didn't go forward an inch. This was Bam! And it came down."

A year after Flight 800, Penny was asked by retired Navy Commander William S. Donaldson, if he were sure he saw something going up and not down. He said, "I ought to be able to tell if something is going up in the air or going down in the air... I'm not changing my mind about it ...I'll stick to that until I die."

In addition, Penny talked about a neighbor who also saw an ascending object in the sky and was questioned by investigators if she might have confused up and down. Penny, related, "She was upset because she says I'm a grown woman. She says I saw something definitely going and there is no question in my about that and she says I'm not changing my mind either."

Mike Hull of Westchester has an extensive website concerning Flight 800. He has put together a telling summary and analysis of the eyewitness reports; a portion of his research is used in this article. (Hull's website is http://hometown.aol.com/bardonia. One can download all the eyewitness reports at www.twa800.com)

Further evidence that Flight 800 did not ascend, aflame after exploding (and thus create the illusion of a rising missile), is provided by the pilot of a private plane over Riverhead that fateful evening. Witness 702, Swen Faret (who was interviewed by the media after the incident) said his AC-12 was cruising at 8,500 feet. He saw, southward of his plane, a white light which suddenly exploded. Faret said he had seen what he believed to be a plane's running lights just before the explosion. The FBI report reads, 'The object, according to 702, definitely exploded below his plane because the smoke trail after the explosion was at seven and a half thousand feet. He realized it was a plane that had exploded when he flew over to the area.

"Upon exploding, the debris fell quickly and straight down."

Witness 475 was a first officer on a plane and witnessed an explosion below his craft. The witness estimated that the explosion occurred at an altitude of 5,000-6,000 feet.

At this point it should be inserted that not all eyewitness reports tell of a missile-like object, though, of course over one hundred do; but, it seems, not one eyewitness, who believed him or herself looking at a plane, saw it rise after it exploded. Again, the "experts" say this is because the fireball that witnesses saw rising was the already exploded plane. It is apparent that Flight 800 suffered two explosions. In the CIA analysis presented to the public in the autumn of 1997, the agency said that the plane rose from 12,800 feet to 17,000 feet after the first explosion and exploded a second time and it was this that eyewitnesses confused as a missile trail ending in an explosion.

But, as reports such as those given by Faret and Witness 475 indicate, an explosion below 8,000 feet occurred – undoubtably the second explosion, and nowhere near the 17,000 feet the CIA says this explosion occurred.

Paul Angelides, on the beach in Westhampton, saw a flare rise up from the water and witnessed the skyborne explosion. In a description he wrote for Commander Donaldson in July, 1998, he said, "Months later I saw the CIA reenactment on various TV newscasts. It does not correlate in any

Who's Here:

Elizabeth "Buffy" Cooke of Bide-a-Wee

By Janna Cord

Life and work, work and life. For Elizabeth "Buffy" Cooke these words are interchangeable. I sat down with Buffy recently to talk to her about her life and work with the not-for-profit Bide-a-Wee Association, where she has been president for the past six years and a volunteer on the board for the last twenty years. Although raised among Manhattan's privileged and educated at some of the world's most highbrow institutions, Buffy's first impression is one of a very down to earth woman with one clear goal, the caring for and adopting of homeless cats and dogs. Her calendar may be rife with fundraising events, speaking engagements and social appointments, but Buffy makes it clear that she is involved with Bide-a-Wee because of her pure love of animals, not as a social spring board. A full time resident of Remsenberg for the past twenty-one years, she spends two days a week in New York (where Bide-A-Wee is headquartered) and a total of fifty to sixty hours working for the foundation. As did her predecessors, she accepts no salary and in her tenure on the board has worked tirelessly to bring fresh ideas and new programs to the organization.

Founded in 1903, Bide-A-Wee began as one woman's crusade against cruelty to animals. A member of New York's social class was outraged at what she considered to be inhumane treatment of the hansom cab horses in Central Park. Through her own efforts, she set about building water troughs along Fifth Avenue to insure the creatures at least had fresh water. From that act of kindness was born Bide-A-Wee. Scottish for "stay awhile," Bide-A-Wee in its 97 year history has never euthanized an animal. The organization has grown to oversee three shelters (Manhattan, Wantaugh and Westhampton), three veterinary clinics, the Golden Years Retirement Home in Westhampton and two memorial parks where it offers a final resting place for dogs and cats. They employ 136 workers, eleven full time veterinarians and over 350 volunteers.

Buffy Cooke's relationship with Bide-A-Wee began some twenty years ago. After moving to Remsenberg, she adopted a dog form the Westhampton facility. The following Christmas she sent them a $50 donation. After receiving no acknowledgement, she decided to go over there personally to see what had happened. From that unanswered act of kindness began a life commitment to the organization. She joined the board and eventually was elected president in 1994. Born and raised in New York City, she briefly pursued an acting career, appearing on stage opposite John Forsythe, and on live TV in the '50s usually as "a corpse or the girlfriend or something" Acting didn't fulfill her, and in her late '20s, when she started becoming "schizophrenic," she left the business. She lived abroad and attended both Vassar and the Sorbonne. Buffy's first two marriages ended in divorce (the second she claims was a spy who was murdered in Paris) and her third to Bob, she gleams, was "the one." She has six children and stepchildren and eleven grandchildren. When asked if her kin were animal lovers too she replied, "They'd better be."

Buffy herself has had a dog since the age of three. She recalls the only time she was without one was when she lived abroad in Paris. If there is one thing she cannot tolerate, it's the abandonment or mistreatment of animals. She truly believes that animals are feeling, caring souls who deserve the utmost respect and compassion. "Dogs and cats play such an important role in so many of our lives" she says "they deserve to be treated as well as we would treat another human being."

Although she's now a widow, she reveals that her yellow Lab Harley Davidson forces her to keep a routine. Sadly, however, in her position she is exposed to so many incidents of outrageous behavior towards animals. There are, of course, the people who return puppies just a few days after adopting them for various reasons (too loud, too much work, too destructive). One of the worst cases, she remembers, involved someone tying up a pregnant dog to the Bide-A-Wee outer fence in Westhampton in the dead of a winter's night. The dog gave birth that night and when the staff arrived they found six of the seven puppies frozen to the pavement.

When she first became involved with the Association, she learned of the packs of wild dogs that ruled the Pine Barrens. These were pure bred, beautiful animals who had been abandoned at the end of the summer by vacationers who couldn't cope with bringing them back to the city. Somehow these dogs had survived and adapted to the wild. Bide-A-Wee also tries to save as many animals as they can from New York's shelters, where they euthanize over 40,000 dogs each year. Dogs and cats are usually destroyed after only one week at a shelter if they are not claimed or adopted, some after only twenty-four hours.

Crueller still are what Buffy calls "puppy mills." Some organizations, she claims, that tout themselves as no-kill, humane animal shelters, actually get their dogs from these mills. In the mills, female dogs are kept in cages and bred up to three times a year. Some of these dogs "never touch a blade of grass their entire lives," she recounts sadly. The litters end up with all sorts of problems as well. Over breeding of certain types of dogs had virtually ruined certain breeds. Cocker Spaniels are one type Cooke believes have become "totally insane" from over breeding. Dalmatians are suffering a similar fate after their surge in popularity in the wake of Disney's re-release of 101 of them.

She also is working to protect the Greyhound, a breed she considers to be endangered. Well known for their use on the dog track circuit, Greyhounds are starved, whipped and killed by age two or three when they are no longer of use for racing. In fact, Cooke claims that Greyhounds actually need little exercise and are exceptionally quiet, making them ideal for city life.

Another occupational hazard includes dealing with some of the usual lawsuits the organization is faced with each year. For example, a man sued the organization when he discovered that his dog had been buried in a previously used grave. He was Jewish, and claimed it was against his religion. Bide-A-Wee fought and won. Many other suits involve family members trying to retrieve an inheritance they believe is rightfully theirs, but had been left to grandma's cat in the Golden Years Retirement Home or to Bide-A-Wee in the name of aunt so-and-so's dog.

Luckily, however, there are two acts of kindness and compassion for every act of cruelty. The world is full of people who genuinely love animals, evident by the plethora of donations. The adoption end of the organization has seen the most success. In fact in the Westhampton facility there are only two adult dogs continuing to live there who where never adopted as puppies. Although currently operating in the black, Cooke stresses the constant need for support. They never know from year to year what they will encounter financially. For example, Cooke pursued and oversaw the development of Bide-A-Wee's Golden Years Retirement Home for older dogs and cats located on the Westhampton property. She had received many calls over the years from elderly pet owners who were desperately concerned about the fate of their dog or cat once they were gone. Some were being moved into nursing homes where they could not bring their pet and family members weren't interested in taking on their animal. Many, she found, didn't want their pets to be adopted to a new home. These animals had been their companions, friends and protectors and they couldn't bear the thought of them living with another family. To that end, Cooke developed the idea of the retirement home. For a one time donation of $10,000, people can send their pets (cats or dogs eight years or younger) to live out their lives at the home. The dogs live in cubicles and the cats live in an enormous "catery" bathed in sunlight from the greenhouse like windows. The opportunity to give so many such peace of mind has given Cooke untold joy.

The other program Bide-A-Wee spearheads is placing dogs with various government agencies as sniffing canines. The Association donates dogs to the "Beagle Brigade," who work for the Department of Agriculture searching for illegal fruits and vegetables at state lines. Labradors go to the FBI for bomb sniffing, and the Springer Spaniels and Labs are used in airports and at border checks to locate drugs.

One of the Bide-A-Wee Labs was responsible for the largest drug bust in the history of Texas. Not too many years ago, Bide-A-Wee had a 100 plus pound Yellow Lab given to them, who went by the name Zeke. No one could seem to control this dog, so they called on one of the government's narcotics units to see if they could have any use for him. They came and took one look at Zeke and exclaimed "this dog we need!" Some months later, Cooke called them to see if Zeke could make a guest appearance at one of their fundraisers. She was told that Zeke was no longer working with them. Concerned, Cooke pressed until she found out that Zeke wasn't cut out for drug work, instead he had found his true calling in bomb sniffing. She asked if she could get the number at the FBI of his new commander when she was told that Zeke could not be contacted at this time, as he was doing "under cover" work in Israel. It turns out that Zeke's assignment was to visit a known terrorist in an Israeli jail who was famous for making a certain type of bomb. Authorities had suspected terrorism in the TWA flight 800 disaster, and this man was a prime target of investigation. Of course, the FBI agent was the one under cover, not Zeke, but Buffy got a kick out of the story none the less.

A great deal of Buffy Cooke's time is spent fundraising, as Bide-A-Wee exists only through individual contributions. Cooke established Bide-A-Wee's yearly Have a Heart Gala which takes place at the Pierre Hotel in New York every

"VOTED BEST CATERER ON THE EAST END '95, '96, '97, '98 AND '99. — Dan's Papers

283 Pantigo Road, East Hampton, New York

preview: guild hall 2000

By Joan Zandell

At the recent press conference at Guild Hall announcing the upcoming season, a brisk enthusiasm permeated the proceedings. Guild Hall's director, Dr. Ruth Appelhof, is clearly delighted with her amalgam of new and old staff members. Whether it is the Arts Curator Simon Taylor giving monthly gallery lectures, Carmel Owen broadening the base for gift giving, or Susan Lazarus-Reiman's extensive educational schedule, Dr. Appelhof continues to look to the community to prescribe Guild Hall's programming.

The season kicks off with a show of the acclaimed Jack Youngerman's wooden sculptures through June 4th. This show has The New York Times stamp of approval, which should inspire confidence in the more callow adventurers of the East End gallery scene. On June 17th, the blockbuster "American Impresionism: Treasures from the Smithsonian American Art Museum" opens to the public. It is a traveling exhibition originating from the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of American Art. Fifty-four pieces are on loan including well known East End Impressionists, Chase, Hassam and Twachtman. Guild Hall member Alexandra Munroe and partner, Robert Rosenkranz will host a reception at their home in East Hampton on June 16th for a mere $275 per person. (Guild Hall anticipates a big response, so if you plan to go, make your arrangements promptly.)

The other blockbuster is a rarely seen body of De Kooning's work curated by Klaus Kertess. The exhibition opens on August 12th. The Gala Dinner will be held on the grounds of the De Kooning home on Friday, August 11th. Prices begin at $500 and a ticket purchase entitles you to a tour on the day following the benefit.

This year's Writer's Series curated by your's truly, begins with a fresh, young and very talented poet, Edward Clapp on June 4th. He'll be followed by Howard Fast on June 11th, Faith Popcorn on July 9th, Peter Matthiessen on July 16th, Al Roker on July 23rd, E.Lynn Harris on July 30th, Rona Jaffe on August 6th, Recent Steinbeck Award winner, Dava Sobel on August 20th, and a special panel discussion moderated by the incomparable Barbara Goldsmith on "The Meaning of Celebrity" on June 25th.

The educational programming has everything from a master class with members of the Joffrey, to a touching remembrance of the Holocaust as seen through the poetry and artwork of the children of the Terezin Concentration Camp on June 23rd and 24th. If the classics are your thing, The Gingerbread Players and Jack present Snow White on August 2nd, and the Carlotta Santana dance Co. Presents Flamenco Vivo! on August 16th.

The annual Cabaret by the sea has a classical lineup with Michael Feinstein on August 11th, Linda Eder on August 19th, Andrea Marcovicci on July 7th and 8th, and Betty Buckley on June 30th and July 1st, and Linda Akers on July 15th.

For music lovers there is everything from The Caribbean Jazz Project on July 3rd, to an evening of Baroque Music performed by the New York Collegium on July 2nd, interspersed with Pianofest as well as the Music Festival of the Hamptons.

Schedules of the events are available at the Guild Hall box office. It is recommended that you reserve early to avoid the crush. And another season begins! •

TEN YEARS AGO
"The Show Must Go On"
May 11, 1990

The show Sweet Charity played on Broadway for well over a year. I don't know how important this was to the show's success, but in one memorable scene, the actress Julie Miller appears completely nude, except for one dozen white pigeons that have been trained to perch on her body to protect her modesty.

Now, these pigeons did this job for well over a year on Broadway and so they continued to do it when the show went on the road and began traveling around the country. Of course Julie Miller, who continued in her role, traveled with them and, along with a handler, took care of them. She knew them and they knew her. One presumes they had become good friends.

In any case, two weeks ago on a Thursday evening, the cast of "Sweet Charity" boarded a chartered plane in Des Moines were they had played to rave reviews, to head for their next destination, which happened to be Cleveland. The plane was still at the gate and the cast was just settling into their seats when a stewardess came into the cabin.

"Anybody here have pigeons?" she wanted to know.

Of course, both Julie Miller and the keeper identified themselves. What was the problem?

"They are all over the runway. Come with me." Down on the tarmac, Julie Miller and the keeper found the pigeons wandering peacefully around their traveling crate next to the rear wheels. Apparently, in loading it into the cargo bay of the plane, it had cracked open. The luggage handlers didn't have the slightest idea of what to do.

"Puck, puck, puck," the handler called.

Julie Miller, of course, simply stood perfectly still. And the pigeons as they always did, leaped on the actress, took their places and looked happily out, even though she was fully clothed. The keeper plucked them off, one at a time and put them back in the crate and that was the end of it. Or was it?

At one o'clock in the afternoon every Friday, the cast has a run-through to familiarize themselves with their new stage. The Cleveland stage, as it turned out, was not much different than the Des Moines stage, and everything went pretty well until it came time for Julie Miller to appear covered with her pigeons. In the wings, the crate was opened, the pigeons leaped out, and they covered Julie Miller in all twelve places. No. They covered her only in eleven places. Her, er, whatchamacallit was completely exposed. A pigeon was missing and if the show went on that night without it then it would have to be rated X.

"My God, it must have got left in Des Moines."

"Who is it?"

"It's Little Harry."

"Can't anybody cover for him?"

"What about a different pigeon?"

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of a New Islander #105
"... gracefully surrendering the things of youth..."

That's a line from the Desirderata, which any flower child worth his or her love beads memorized at one point in time. It's good to gracefully surrender some of the things of youth, and equally good to keep a few.

This past weekend was surprisingly warm and all kinds of slightly wilted flower children erupted. We had a plethora of motorcyclists here this weekend. They weren't gracefully surrendering anything. On the ferry, I saw a great looking couple on a big comfortable looking motorcycle. They both had expensive looking black leather chaps. Hers had big red roses on each thigh and fringe the length of the legs. When they removed their helmets and two gray heads emerged, I thought to myself, good for you!

Nothing will date you like your hair. I admire women who keep their hairstyle current, it definitely holds back time. Braver women don't even cover their grey. The most evolved women have grey hair in current styles. I still have long hair with the grey colored in a non-descript brown, which I wear in a completely outdated and unattractive bun. To dress it up I add decorative hairsticks which makes it look like I have antenna. Hey, don't laugh, on a clear day, I can pick up Chicago... I just don't have the courage of my peers to go under the scissors.

I hate to see men in forties/fifties with ponytails, especially when half their head is bald. I hate to see bald men doing the Q-ball coverup and wrapping their remaining five hairs around their heads. I think bald is beautiful. One bald man explained to me that a man kills one hair follicle everytime he satisfies a woman and that's how men become bald. Learn something new everyday...

I saw two matching beautiful cherry red Honda motorcyles parked outside of Primo Pizza Sunday night. Biggest motorcycles I ever saw with lots of attachments. I think there was a small fridge, small screen TV/VCR, flip out habachi, and mini-wine rack. His and hers helmets rested on the gas tanks. I never saw the owners, but I can tell you; 1. they were hippies 2. they "made it." 3. they know how to have a good time 4. they fully intend to ride the road till it runs clean outta bricks.

I know younger generations look at the older motorcyclists and only see geezers on wheels. I look at them and still see Peter Fonda riding down the highway in Easy Rider. I can even hear "Born to be Wild" playing in the background. Although, with love handles, stretch marks and backaches, we may have to modify that to "Born to be Mild."

There was a long string of cyclists riding on route 114 on Saturday. Geriatric flower children, everyone of them. Part of me cheered, part of me wished they would dress better. I hate beer logo tee-shirts with black leather vests. How about a nice slimming dark monochromatic look, guys? If you are going to be middle-aged and riding a Harley, elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

Now that the weather is nice, almost everyone I know is anxious to be outside. I don't understand why the ants and mice think that springtime is the time to go indoors. Yesterday I was sitting at my desk watching three ants climb up the wall in front of me. We found a poor dead mouse in my mother's house. While standing in the kitchen we heard another mouse in the garbage. At home I have a cat. She may need to come to work with me. She has her job and I have mine.

I have a funny ritual with the ants. I have to kill them but I don't want to live in a sea of poison. When I step on an ant I usually say "bome shankar." These are the words that Lord Shiva was to have said when he destroyed the universe. I like to think that the ants will be reincarnated as "higher beings." This method of killing ants one by one doesn't work. The ants don't tell their friends to simply stay away from me. They come looking for their dead kin. They don't come to bury them. They come and take them away because they see the dead creatures as a food source. Ants have a highly organized social order. They live in colonies and join together to perform when it comes to moving their "nests." I have seen ants move cement in order to live in a rock wall. The mortar didn't seem to cause them any problem. They simply moved it away.

My husband used to fumigate our house in Mexico. I've seen him spray poison into a hole in a rock wall and afterwards seen hundreds of ants run out of five or six other holes in the wall. We built the wall in question. It was stone and cement. No problem for the ants!

Why do the ants come inside? There is more food outside. There is usually more water outside. You can dig into the ground. You can't dig into hard wood floors or tile or carpet. I don't see the attraction. In the winter, I see the attraction to a nice cozy view of the fire. Do these cold-blooded insects simply slow down to a point of non-movement in the winter? They are on the move now. They can exhaust me. They're so busy.

At dinner last night there was conversation about squirrels and raccoons who adopt people in the winter. One friend of mine has an obsession with his raccoons. He has formed an organization called R.A.C., the Raccoon Action Coalition. He has some other board involvements but R.A.C. seems to be his favorite. The raccoons live in his garage in the winter. He feeds them dog food. He has named them. He tells me they are more entertaining than television. They steal his shoes.

In trying to understand the ants better I went to the dictionary. Right after the word ant comes the wood antacid, "an agent that counteracts acidity." Taken out of context it gives food for thought. I don't want to run into any ant acid in my house. Can't someone encourage them to go back outside?

way with my observations... The red, phosphorescent object which first attracted my attention travelled a great distance and at great speed to the area of 800's demise. The object originated in a vastly different sector of the sky than the Flight 800 path."

In his summary of the eyewitness reports, Hull points out that several eyewitnesses saw two missile-streaks indicate that Flight 800 was struck by two missiles.

Witness 261 on the beach on Southampton saw what he thought was an orange "firework" shoot upward from the southwest. It ascended then descended and was lost to his sight. In another moment he saw a second and third "firework" ascend at the same time. About half a minute later, the witness said he heard a rumble and saw a smoke trail going down to the horizon.

Wtinesses 86 and 158 observed two orange ascending streaks. Rosa Gray Khalilch, as reported by the Suffolk County police, from Smith's Point, saw a pair of ascending orange streaks end in a fireball. Witness 218 in Brookhaven saw two unidentified objects ascend and explode.

Barbara Pacholk, interview by Flight 800 researcher Tom Stalcup, also saw two objects rise up into the sky. She claims that one exploded at the tail of the plane, one near the nose. She further claimed that she saw the periscope of a submarine in the water, with the periscope directed at the distant plane. She thought it possible one missile came from this submarine.

There was a husband and wife on Dune Road by Tiana Bay: he saw two streaks ascend; from another direction, she saw another.

Some eyewitnesses said they saw an apparent missile hit the plane on one side in the front, others said they saw the plane impacted on the opposite side; a few said they saw the plane hit from the rear. This latter view would explain why a beam from the rear of the plane was jammed through the entire craft and into the cockpit.

Hull said, "When you go through all the eyewitness reports you understand why the FBI was confused. You've got one apparent missile coming from one direction and another from another, and then a third."

One of the most telling witness reports of two missile-like streaks were by Air National Guard personnel in a Blackhawk helicopter over Gabreski Airport in Westhampton. The Blackhawk was, prior to a nighttime training exercise, making a practice approach to the airport. Pilots Fred Meyer and Chris Bauer saw, from different perspectives, a separate streak each, culminating in an explosion.

"So," Hull went on, "it was easy for the FBI to conclude that the witnesses were confused, not seeing what they were seeing. But when you conclude there were three missiles, it fits."

It is apparent, from the testimony of a number of witnesses that the FBI agents who interviewed them personally considered it very possible that a missile or missiles brought down Flight 800. Angelides said that during his interview with the Bureau he noticed on the questionaire from which the agents were drawing their queries, "When did you first see the missile?"

Along with the eyewitness accounts, the FBI released a report drafted by Special Agent Steven Bongardt (whom sources say personally witnessed a missile-like streak in the sky that night of July 17, 1996). The report details the plotting of lines of sight of a number of the "missile" sightings, for the purpose of trying to determine if Flight 800 has been brought down by a MANPAD (Man Portable Air Defense, or, in other words, a shoulder launched missile.) The report details fixing different sightings from different eyewitnesses, but offers no conclusions.

At the end of his website summary on the eyewitness reports, Mike Hull offers an analysis on the probability of the accuracy or inaccuracy of the eyewitness.

"If one assumes that a 'reliable' witness can report an observation correctly in only one out of five observations, there is only a twenty percent probability that an event reported by such a witness would have actually taken place as described." Having two eyewitnesses rises the probability of accuracy to thrity-six percent. With ten witnesses it is 89.26 percent. With forty it is 99.99 percent. If we lower the degree of reliability to ten percent accuracy, it would take fifty witness to insure an event had a 99 plus percent probability of occurring.

Hull choose the twenty and then ten percent figures merely to show that if one considered eyewitnesses very unreliable (being correct only one in five or one in ten times), if forty or fifty of these witnesses reported a similar event it was extremely likely that it had indeed occurred.

Witnesses 745: "observed, to his right, an object similar to a rocket, which appeared to have come from the ground, moving straight up in the air..."

Can all these eyewitnesses be mistaken as to what they saw? •

HEADLINE NEWS

Former Southampton ZBA Chairman Pleads Guilty

When Edward T. Rush, the chairman of the Southampton Town Zoning Board of Appeals was arrested last year for receiving bribes in return for favorable judgements on applications, he insisted a jury trial would prove his innocence. Apparently Rush had second thoughts. In a plea bargain with the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office, Rush pled guilty as charged to Bribe Receiving Third Degree (a Class "D" felony) and Official Misconduct (a Class "A" misdemeanor) before Suffolk County Court Judge Joseph Farneti in Riverhead. Although Rush can receive prison time for his crimes, the judge has indicated he will sentence Rush to five years probation and 840 hours of community service.

Motorcyclist In Fatal Accident

Just past ten o'clock on the evening of Sunday, May 7, East Hampton Town Police received a call of an accident in front of the Montauk Lighthouse. A passerby had discovered a 1998 Harley Davidson rotorcycle in the road by the parking lot of the lighthouse. The motorcycle appeared to have struck the guard rail on the east side of the road. The driver of the motocycle was found on the other side of the guardrail. As of presstime the name of the driver has not been released, pending notification of next of kin.

February. Although she admits that some of these fundraising events can be quite generic and incredibly boring, she insists that the attendees of this event are definitely not the "walking X-ray, socialite" types simply looking to get their picture in the pages of W Magazine. They do, however, have their share of celebrity support. Last year Hilary Clinton took a table as did Barbara and Gerald Levin, who was seen leading the conga line late into the evening. The other main event of the year is held in the Hamptons each August. This summer the "Love on a Leash" fundraiser will be held at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center and will be proceeded by a parade of animals on Main Street and feature the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra as entertainment.

Buffy Cooke is looking ahead with great promise. She believes the Westhampton facility is the cornerstone of their future development. Currently a project is underway to restore an old house on the grounds into another clinic, and the memorial park has ample acreage remaining. "Bide-A-Wee is simply the best," she states with absolute certainty and with her dedication and support I have a feeling it can only get better. • you just have to dress better. I insist.

You could spot the ones who hate helmets, because they always wear those minimal cranial caps, which makes their heads look tiny and silly. I think those are the ones who haven't had a good wipe-out yet. Some wore the big helmets with jaw protection and full leather gear. Those are the ones whom I bet have hit the deck and had the asphalt rash experience. My ER nurse friends call motorcycles, donorcycles.

It's clear to me that the Desirderata becomes truer every day. And it is important to gracefully surrender the things of youth... unless of course, you own a Harley. •

"I don't know how the others would react. I don't even know if we could train a new pigeon in just four hours. Or if we could train him if we could trust him"

"We've got to find Little Harry and get him here."

A phone call immediately went out to the Des Moines airport. The pigeon's name was Little Harry and though he would not come when called, he was all white and would therefore be easy to find and easy to handle. No, he doesn't bite.

The key to the whole thing was the fact that pigeons are trained to walk over to whatever bright light is closest to them and stay there. Unless the light goes out, they will stay be the light indefinitely.

"He'd be by one of the runway lights," an official in Des Moines said.

"But it's daytime now."

"Our runway lights shine night and day."

"Hallelujah!"

"What gate were you people departing from?"

Des Moines was kept on the line while a frantic call was put in to the charter airline on another phone.

"Twenty-three."

Gate twenty-three meant runway eighty-nine. And runway eighty-nine meant the light at the most southerly corner. This would have been around a quarter of a mile for the pigeon. On the other hand, it meant a quarter of a mile for the airplane as well. If the pigeon were still there, could he even have survived?

At 2:38 p.m., just ten minutes after the phone rang at Des Moines airport, official orders were given to shut down runway eighty-nine and divert all planes. This would, indeed, cause some bottlenecks, and it most certainly would delay some travelers, but what was this anyway when compared to the life of a trained pigeon?

The airport manager himself headed to gate twenty three, and he instructed the assistant manager to make some phone calls and put together a search part to include baggage handlers, runway traffic controllers and security. "Four people from each department," he said. "And if there's anybody who knows anything about pigeons, I want them down there too."

A quick meeting was held in the waiting area at gate twenty-three. Strategy was discussed.

"No quick motions. No loud noises. Just use the wastebaskets."

Everyone had a wastebasket.

"Just call out after you've got him covered."

Thirteen people clambered noisily down the metal stairway from the waiting area to the runway and headed out on foot. It didn't take long.

Little Harry was found exactly where he was expected to be.

He was wastebasketed, transferred to a crate, fed by a pigeon expert who had been rushed out to the airport, and then carefully carried up to the first class section of a flight that just happened to be going from Des Moines to Cleveland that very afternoon. He was given his own first class seat.

That night the show went on without a hitch.

Elaine Benson's Book Signing

Summer is finally here! The Elaine Benson Gallery hosted the twenty-third annual Meet the Writers Bookfair for the John Steinbeck Project at LI University's Southampton Campus. On Friday, May 5 this year's outstanding writer of the year award went to science writer Dava Sobel. Although it rained in Nassau County the book fair was relatively dry (with help from our friends Joseph Heller & Elaine Benson). WPBX, SH College's radio station broadcast the event "live" from the gallery which has re-opened for its thirty-sixth Season. Welcome Back!

Ann McCoy's "Gobos" & Watercolors at the Blue Heron

Patrick Christiano, Curator of the Blue Heron Arts Center Gallery, hosted a reception for Ann McCoy at the gallery at 123 East 24th Street (btwn Park and Lex) in New York. The gallery space was transformed by the magic of Ann McCoy's theatrical lighting and her imaginative watercolors. Her works have their origins in the dream world and mythology. Everyone agreed the show is a "Must See,". The installation will be on view until June 18th.

Spirit of Achievement

The National Women's Division of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine honored five women who exemplify the spirit of achievement. They included: senator from California Barbara Boxer, a women whose comments can send a market rocking or rolling; Abby Joseph Cohen, a women who turns enough heads to sell out a Ben-Gay rack, Cindy Crawford, the in-your-face Judge with the wicked wit, Judge Judy Scheindlin, and philanthropist extraordinaire, Iris Cantor. The luncheon event took place last week at the Waldorf Astoria. Andrea Stark quite a spirit herself, co-chaired the event which took in over $300,000 for cancer vaccine research. A special award was also given to Emily Fisher Landau, an advocate for the learning disabled. Maria Bartiromo of CNBC (see I didn't call her the money honey) was emcee.

Coming Soon - Southampton Hospital Star Spangled 2000

Not all our coverage is fancy; sometimes they're home grown. The Benefit Committee for Southampton Hospitals Star Spangled 200 event which kicks off the Hampton's season on Sunday, May 28 had its own little get-together at the home of Delia Schulte in Westhampton. This year the event will have a new format auction and among those "must have" prizes are: a party for 100 at The inn at Quogue, Wimbledon tickets with flights on the Concorde, a four day vacation at La Samanna (hey David - that's where we went on our honeymoon and I expect you in there bidding), and a week in Nantucket on the remote possibility that you get Hampton-ed out.

Boys Harbor Gala

Boys Harbor, one of the Hamptons' special places had its benefit last week at the Plaza Hotel. This year, Tony Duke the Harbor's founder when it was called "Duck Island" gave theAwards of Achievement to Mary Elizabeth Dannhauser and Stephen Dannhauser. Elizabeth has been instrumental in the introduction of new pediatric procedures including infant relaxation massage. Her special touch has extended to work done at Boy's Harbor including work with toddlers at the Day Care Center. Stephen is a high powered partner of the law firm Weil, Gotshal and Manges, and a hands on supporter of Boys Harbor. the camp sits at Three Mile Harbor in East Hampton.

Kings Pointer to Participate in Maritime Festivel This Fall

Little did Captain Cynthia Smith of the Kings Pointer know as she stepped onto the town dock Midshipman Master Benton would soon be abducted and held for "ransom" by fearsome Greenport pirates, Matt Ritter, Jamie Davis and Benjamin Coutis. The nautical bandits brazenly approached Benton with "swords" drawn, ready for resistance. Seeing the size of the scabbards and hearing the snarling and throaty demands of the pirates, Benton entered the rickety, lopsided wooden cage the pirates brought with them and endured the taunts and jabs with a smile. The only condition upon which Benton would be returned to his shipmates was that the captain of the Kings Pointer agrees to return to Greenport in September to participate in its Maritime Festival. The captain readily agreed.

Relieved to have her Midshipman Master Benton back, Captain Cynthia Smith told quite a different interesting tale about the Kings Pointer and her crew. She and her crew, now that Benton was released by the pirates, could set sail on Sunday morning and visit Washington, D.C., where, on Tuesday, they would be awarded with Medals of Honor for their participation in the recovery efforts after the crash of Egypt Air 990. It was on her watch that the plane crashed; the ship and her crew were able to be on the scene to help. This is only one piece of the ship's varied history. During the Cold War, her mission was to gather underwater acoustic surveillance data on submarines for the Navy.

The current job of the Kings Pointer is not as dramatic as conducting search and rescue missions or transmitting naval intelligence, but is interesting, acting as a leading vessel for cadets at the United Stated Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, New York. While aboard the vessel, Captain Smith's job is to help her students apply their knowledge to the actual working of a ship. At Kings Point, Captain Smith teaches Celestial Navigation. She finds it interesting when her students apply what they have learned in the classroom to the actual navigation of the ship. The training trips provide hands – on experience for her students who will most likely look forward to a career at sea. On these training voyages, the crew is comprised of volunteers, who work hard sailing the ship and giving tours when the ship is docked. In return, they benefit from one-on-one attention from each captain. In addition to Captain Smith, Captain Robert Alley, a retired Navy Captain was on the ship. The ship takes three short training voyages each year in the spring and summer. –Karen Lund

Timing Could Be Right For Riverhead Raceway

It won't take long for the Riverhead Raceway NASCAR Modified drivers to go up against the clock for the 2000 NASCAR Weekly Racing Series.

During the off season Barbara and Jim Cromarty announced that they had set aside eight races on the 2000 schedule that would find the open wheel machines utilizing the time trial qualifying format. This in an effort to better the chances of a Riverhead regular in the nationwide NASCAR Weekly Racing Series Northeast region, as well as nationally. The time trials being staged for a regular thirty-five lap feature and on just the second week of the season are firsts for the quarter mile oval.

Defending champion and track record holder Frank Vigliarolo Jr. of Medford was among the more vocal in showing his pleasure with the increase in time trial shows, as Frank wound up fourth in the New England region in 1999. Vigliarolo set the new track record on August 28th, 1999 when he toured the facility at an ultra quick 11.547 breaking the 11.562 mark of Mike Stefanik, which had stood for seven years. I was hoping to have all our shows time trial qualifying. Aside from Vigliarolo among those seeking to have a good performance to get their 2000 campaign off on the right foot will be Howie Brode of Bay Shore the 1998 champion, along with other former champions Bill Park of Manorville and Chuck Steuer of Bohemia. Also among the drivers who time trial well and are hoping for a good run include Chris Young of Riverhead, Wayne Anderson of Yaphank, Ken Matlach of New Hyde Park, Dan Jivanelli of Hampton Bays, Ken Heagy of Riverhead, Ed Densieski of Riverhead and Al Ermmarino of Brookhaven.

For additional information please contact the Riverhead Raceway office at 631-842-RACE from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday or visit our website at www.riverheadraceway.com.

DAN TRAVELS

Here and There

COLLECTING CABOOSES

When I was a youngster growing up near the end of Long Island's South Fork, I learned that a caboose had a useful function at the very end of the infrequent trains that "rode the rails" way out here at the tip of Long Island. Then, as trains covered more miles per hour, the need for housing the crew aboard disappeared, as did the extra car at the end.

Actually my dictionary describes this now almost obsolete appendage as "a car, usually attached to a freight train for the use of the train's crew." Today it's sometimes used to describe someone, or something that winds up in the rear. As "our youngest is sixteen years behind his next older brother, we even call him Caboose - as a term of endearment, of course."

I'd almost forgotten about this once-functional part of railroad equipment until I stumbled on an impressive collection of old-time cabooses, a few miles outside Lancaster, Pa. in typical Amish Country. The upgraded cabooses are now part of an unusual substitute for more traditional highway motels.

The spread of twenty-five ton hulks joined the highway-lodging world in the early 1970's. It's aptly named The Red Caboose Lodge. Located in Strasburg, it's a real find for railroad buffs, for the collection includes not only cabooses, but also other rail equipment - engines, dining cars, etc. These came from railroads all over the U.S.

Definitely the lodge caters to families, most of whom come because the kids, in this fashion, get to sleep aboard a pseudo train; even to use some of the equipment that is more familiar to their parents and grandparents than to current railway passengers. Eventually the fleet of cabooses was joined to an old-time dining car which are lined up train fashion in the gently rolling farm acres through which rail lines once rumbled, the train's warning blasts echoing through the fields of corn, hay and garden crops.

The cabooses are set up in long rows on real railroad rails and ties. The complex represents a hefty investment, but one to which the traveling public has reacted in welcome numbers. An afterthought was the now popular gift-shop museum, heavily stocked with railroad type items in the form of engineer's caps, whistles, railcars, mugs and plates.

Actually the owners of the "cars that no longer travel," have retained the cars' former outside appearance, the original colorings of the cars and even the names of the lines which they served, including a yellow caboose from the LIRR. These are set up with two sleeping units to a car, for either families (one double and four bunk beds) and couples (double beds). There's even a honeymoon caboose with a whirlpool bath and private deck). Cost runs from $50 to a bit over $100 a night. A come-on gimmick features special rates for designated weekends, including a child's birthday weekend. "He gets to be the engineer on his special day," explained an employee.

Actually the Caboose approach resulted from a not-too-serious bid for nineteen discarded cabooses that Donald Denlinger made on a dare at an auction in 1970. Denlinger was then the operator of the Mill-bridge Craft Village in Soudersburg where there were demonstrations by Plain Folk milling, spinning, making funnel cakes and fudge, painting Toleware and making brooms. These Amish activities were a good warm-weather draw, but a winter snow during which Denlinger made his "preposterous" bid was a low point.

Hiking the Chilkoot Trail

So you really want an adventure this year to help us celebrate the peak of the Klondike Gold Rush, do you? Well, a few days on the Chilkoot Trail is guaranteed to be an experience that you'll not soon forget.

To some degree, you can choose the type of experience you want on the trail. A summer hike with the family will be a far cry from a solitary hike off-season, which was my choice last week (May 18-22). Hiking the trail requires reservations and permits from Parks Canada, and July and August are already fully booked - only fifty people a day can start, to keep damage to the trail to a minimum, and to maintain as much as possible a "wilderness" feel to it. The historical purists will note here that it certainly wasn't a wilderness experience 100 years ago, with up to 20,000 people on the thirty-three miles of trail - now only about 1% of that number is allowed.

To varying degrees, Skagway will be your base of operations for the trip. Bus service is available to the trailhead, last-minute trail condition reports can be accessed at the Visitor Center, and you can grab a last burger before switching to various forms of glop for the duration of your trip, generally three to five days.

At any time between May and October, the variety of terrain and ecosystems that hikers experience is remarkable. From the northern limit of the coastal rain forest to barren granite with scattered arctic plants, the route will keep your brain working as you try to absorb it all. But to most people who "do the Chilkoot," the overwhelming feeling both during and after the trip is amazement that the Klondike Stampede could occur under such conditions. To immerse yourself in the trail's history before you go, I highly recommend reading Chilkoot Trail by David Neufeld and Frank Norris.

The American side of the trail is in extremely good condition, particularly considering the very difficult terrain involved. Trail crews have already been out and all the deadfalls have been removed, and some minor maintenance (on stairs particularly) has been done. There are some very impressive bridges on the lower section, including a suspension bridge that takes a side-trail across the Taiya River to the ruins of Canyon City.

There is a "false summit" just past The Scales that many people find discouraging when they realize that the real climb, the Golden Stairs, is still ahead, so be ready for it. Regardless of how many photographs of the Golden Stairs that you've seen, the first view of it is truly shocking - if there is still snow on it, it looks impossible to climb. A raging blizzard was blowing when I went over last week (dumped six inches of snow in three hours, with winds of about 40 mph), and my first view could better be described as terrifying! Once you're over the Summit, it feels like it takes forever to get to the next campsite, at Happy Camp – the rangers advise that you should figure on ten hours to hike the 7.5 miles from Sheep Camp to Happy Camp, and it's very good advice. From Happy Camp to Bennett is in some ways the best part of the trail, with expansive views, gentle grades (except for a bit of ridge-work above Long Lake), and a great feeling of accomplishment tucked away safely in your vest pocket.

Some of the warnings that you'll read about trail preparations may seem silly, or overly-cautious, but conditions can vary radically and rapidly from hour to hour, and it will be in your best interests to pack everything you possibly can in the way of clothing, equipment and food for the expected duration of your trip, plus a couple of extra days.

For those of you who decide that hiking the trail isn't for you, you can still get a good idea of what it's like from the air. From Skagway, tours and charters are available through L.A.B. Flying Service, Skagway Air Service, Wings of Alaska and Temsco Helicopters. At the other end of the trail (where the weather is almost always more flier-friendly), Chilkoot Air Service at Carcross also offers aerial tours of the trail.

Whether you experience the Chilkoot Trail from ground level or from a couple of thousand feet, it will be a part of your Northern adventure to savour. If you have any specific questions that aren't answered elsewhere, just drop me a line, or come over to our Bulletin Boards – they're always open, and easy to use.

Shop'til You Drop.....With Maria Tennariello

We're havin' a heat wave, a tropical heat wave....Shopping was still on my agenda this weekend, heat or no heat. So...Let's do some shopping!

In Southampton on Nugent Street Titano has some great news. New at Titano are women's pants and skirts in terrific summer colors made of the finest cotton, cool and comfortable in this early summer heat. Pick up a beautiful twin set in coordinating colors, or one or two of the beautifully tailored pure Egyptian cotton blouses made in Italy, exclusively for Titano. For men, you must see the silk and cotton T-shirts, summer sweaters, shirts and ties and for that special guy or special occasion, cashmere and cotton polls. Titano is open Thursday through Monday, or of course by appointment on Tuesday and Wednesday. Call 631-287-4123.

Looking for primo teak? John Rogers Collection Outlet has just received their newest and largest shipment of grade A quality garden teak furniture direct for their factory in Java. Located on Main Street (between Bookhampton and the Golden Pear), open seven days a week and if you mention my name, you will get 5% off. How 'bout that!

Another brand new shop has opened in Southampton. Stubbs & Wooton has opened its doors with the new spring and summer line filled with interesting new products like Cabana sandals, in multi-colors. In addition, Stubbs & Wooton has recently introduced many of their signature and new embroidery designs on linen. The handbag and luggage collection is equally as exciting. Linen handbags join the existing collection of needlepoint and tapestry products including small purses, totes and weekend bags. A great source for Mother's Day gift giving.

Aesthetics Home Furnishings & Antiques at the Citerella Plaza formally the Water Mill Shoppes in Bridgehampton is stocking up for the season and has just received a brand new shipment of lamps, mercury glass vases and Chinese antique furnishings. The Shanxi tables can be used as an entry way piece because of the ornamental hand carving on the front of the drawers. They resemble dressers and can be used as such. The rustic patina of the elmwood gives the pieces a commanding presence. Everyone tells them that they love this store and the products. They have discovered a new place to find unusual decorative pieces from across the globe. You can't miss this shop, look for the beautiful floral arrangements outside the store as your passing by on Montauk Highway.

Stretch Eyelet, Secret Closet, S'hampton

Nearby, you must stop in to say hi to Grace and Bruce at Double Rainbow Treats also at the plaza in Water Mill, right on the corner. Great gift ideas for everyone, especially Mom. There is a full line of Godiva chocolates, international candles, gourmet ice creams, and much much more. Stop in and say Hi!

Don't forget Mom for Mother's Day. For the absolute freshest selection, surprise mom or just treat yourself to hard to find varieties of fresh flowers at the Sag Harbor Florist on Bay Street in Sag Harbor. Mom's special day deserves a unique selection of roses in a rainbow of vibrant colors, a Dutch garden bowl which is a beautiful silver Revere bowl that is packed with a luscious and long lasting spring mix. This is Sag Harbor Florist's special for Mom's favorite. There are blooming combinations planters, beautiful Canion blue porcelains, English garden ceramic containers and washable leather garden gloves.

Stretch Lace, Secret Closet, S'hampton

At Hedges right on Main Street in Sag Harbor they are featuring a Mothers Day sale on selected linens that have been reduced 40% to 60%. You may find a set of eight toile place mats that are just the right color for mom's kitchen or dining room. Reproduced in France of antique toile prints, this set is reduced 50% to $72 to be exact! There are other sets priced with equal savings. Also, you will find beautiful Belgium linen, kitchen towels that are reduced to $6. My favorite gift to anyone special on my gift list are candles and here the candles are adorned with eucalyptus, ginger and nutmeg made in Italy and are reduced below 60% to 75%, affordable from $37.50 to $47.50. French clay cookware is also reduced 50%. These glazed terracotta pots can be used in the oven or on top of the stove. They are so attractive they may just sit on the counter just looking real pretty. This sale is to make room for the new line of beautiful European decorations for your home and table. The first shipments have already arrived from Italy, Turkey and France, which includes ceramic pasta bowls, serving dishes and lamps. I could go on and on and on...See for yourself!

Have you been to Sue's Gifts yet? Located on Main Street in Sag Harbor, Sue has been shopping all the gift and craft shows across the country finding unique items and decorative accessories to fill her store to the rafters. Look for great accent furniture, serving pieces, candles and framed calligraphy sayings, and eclectic wall décor are on dispay for you to decide what gift goes to who. I must say, this shop is well stocked with great Mother's Day giftware. My kind of gal!

Treat your mom your entire family including yourself to the Mother's Day Special Dinner at Serafina Continental Cuisine. The special Mother's Day menu consists of a three course prix-fixe with entrée selections such as ravioli with pomodoro sauce, leg of lamb, flounder francesco, roasted Atlantic cod or Frenched chicken breast. The prix-fix dinner is certainly affordable at $25.00 per person. A children's menu is also available. Located in the center of Main Street in Sag Harbor, reservations a must. Call 725-0101.

Your wish is their command at House Works. Enjoy your summer whether you rent or own, House Works will take care of all your needs that include babysitting, bartenders, caretakers, chefs, decorating, gardening, housekeepers, tennis lessons, Yoga instruction, fill your fridge, fluff your pillow, serve your dinner even unpack your bags. Now that's like having a "personal genie." Call 725-3400.

How about something really different? The Victor D'Amico Institute of Art, Amagansett, is having an open house celebration on Saturday, May 27 from three to six p.m. There are some June workshops that include watercolor, drawing, studio painting, painting on location, clay studio papermaking, weekend workshops and more. Class for mom? That's an idea. Call 267-3172.

You can shop for all your outdoor furniture in your bathing suit. How? Easy, shop on-line at www.kaufmanallied.com and click your way through outdoor furniture, cushions, raincovers, table covers, bench pads and more. They are also authorized dealers of telescope aluminum, Kettler wrought iron, Suncoast aluminum, Ketter cast aluminum, Cebu indoor/outdoor wicker and North cast aluminum. Located in Central Islip call 631-234-6725 for showroom hours and information.

Speaking about web stuff, TravelBabies.com will help you with all your traveling with small children needs. You can rent cribs, strollers, car seats, high chairs, frame carriers and much more. They sure help me out when the entire family comes out for a holiday or weekend. Call for info at 631-666-3484.

Hot off the press, I can't wait to see this shop that is located in Westhampton on Riverhead Road. Annie & Moe Outlet will be opening Memorial Day Weekend with beautiful hand-painted furniture for every room in the house with special attention to children's furniture. I will keep you posted on this shop. Stay tuned.

What a day of shopping, love every minute of it, believe me. Time to get home, put my feet up and get ready to meet John for dinner at Giordano's Restaurante on Noyac Road for a nice fresh dish of pasta made special for me by John their primo chef.

I want to wish my Mom a special Happy Mother's Day along with all the moms out there.

By the way, next week I will be shopping 'til I drop in Greenport. I am looking forward to the ferry rides and shopping the village shops. Look for my Northfork Shop 'til You Drop column next week.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

JACK YOUNGERMAN AT GUILD HALL

Jack Youngerman's work, while significant, could never be called "breathtaking." Not so with his current exhibition of sculpture at Guild Hall in East Hampton. Perhaps it's the medium and size that make it so, particularly the pieces that are constructed from mahogany and baltic birch plywood— majestic as natural materials, suggesting substance and their longevity on earth. In a word, suggesting life.

Mr. Youngerman's shapes signify duration over time as well, their archetypical forms connoting the oppositional dynamics of Jungian philosophy: "anima" (the female element in the male unconscious) and "animus" (the male element in the female unconscious). The coming together of these contradictions to make one entity can be seen in the artist's sculptures, "Opposites" and "Twinan."

However, there are other pieces where a configuration (resembling a box) does not "split" separate forms apart. These are Mr. Youngerman's arresting symmetrical sculptures where two parts twist around each other ("Gemini"), ebbing and flowing like the seasons or the sea.

While Mr. Youngerman's pen and ink drawings in Guild Hall's library mirror his signature – invented shapes evoking shells and spirals – his sculptural works continue this mode more directly with their homage to Jean Arp (who influenced Mr. Youngerman's paintings as well). More salient, perhaps, is how Mr. Youngerman's sculpture, like his paintings, pay tribute to the architectural elements in nature.

Youngerman's "Gemini"

Speaking of tributes, also on exhibit are selected works collected by Enez Whipple, Guild Hall's Director from 1943 to 1981. Curated with a deft hand by Phyllis Braff, the pieces hold more than a few surprises, including a 1970 watercolor by Claus Hoie, "Children's World," and paintings by Bill Tarr and Helen Hoie. Of course, there are fine works representing Marca-Relli, Nivola, Rivers, Ossorio and Ferren, all beloved local residents and important artists. But there's something to be said for the personal and intimate pieces by artists who are not as well-known, internationally-speaking. We're glad to see them included in this exhibit.

The current show at East Hampton's Guild Hall will be on view until June 4.

Honoring the Artist: Casey Anderson

A painting by Sag Harbor artist Casey Anderson seems the perfect choice to adorn the cover of Dan's Mother's Day issue. Its cheerful, colorful flowers bring the promise of hope for the coming season, its bountiful blossoms evoking a spirted sense of life.

Casey Anderson

Ms. Anderson is not so different from her painting: outgoing, joyful, energetic, positive about the future. Her downstairs studio, where she not only paints but also teaches art classes to young children, is similarly pleasant and buoyant. A visitor is immediately drawn to Ms. Anderson's Japanese prints hanging on the wall, especially ones that feature iris flowers. Such works have a particular meaning for her.

"Japanese prints have had a big influence on my life," Ms. Anderson explains. "Their horizon line, lack of symmetry and especially the colors. Monet and Van Gogh collected Japanese art, and this is what brought me back to Japanese prints."

Ultimately, there were other influences on Ms. Anderson's art, including the fact that she grew up in Greenwich Village during the wild and wonderful sixties. "My parents hung out with artists in the Village; my playground was Washington Square Park," Ms. Anderson says, recalling those days where anything was possible. " I was exposed to the 'bohemian' life of the avant garde in the arts."

Despite these exciting days, Ms. Anderson decided to move to the West Coast and the University of California at Berkeley after someone said, "You really need an education." After receiving her B.A. , Ms. Anderson once again returned to the East Coast, settling in Sag Harbor

The subsequent 10 years have been busy ones for Ms. Anderson: raising her son, Brian, and painting landscapes and portraits. (A portrait of her son has already appeared on Dan's cover.) "I really look for a distinct pose, one that is not self conscious," Ms. Anderson comments as she explains the portrait process. " I actually use photographs of the person and if it's a child, I'll have them with a pet or a stuffed animal. Although I love doing landscapes, I still like to do portraits. I like the shape of the human body, the limbs and head."

Ms. Anderson is also writing a children's book, which sounds particularly intriguing. "It contains lessons in drawing and painting," she comments with enthusiasm. "I relate the lessons to my own art and to my teaching experiences both in my studio and at the Parrish Museum. The book is for parents, too, dealing with how to enhance children's creativity and to get them to look at a painting for more than a few minutes."

Ms. Anderson still has time for her landscape painting as well. "I hope my work communicates a sense of tranquility and serenity," she remarks. "I didn't realize how important art was to me until I did other things for a few months. Painting is a real calling."

–Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Anderson will be exhibiting at Bridgehampton's Elaine Benson Gallery from June 3-19.

Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival 2000

Sometimes in novels or in movies, there's nothing like a good juicy and tender murder or two. And so, this week's Dan's Papers "They Made the Movie Here" Film Festival takes a devious, sharp turn-around in content from last week's weighty and mighty Amistad, Steven Speilberg's detailed drama of slavery issues. On Saturday, May 13th the Ross School's handsome screen will be splashed with swanky melodrama...a pulpy, crime/murder mystery from Dashiell Hammett's first novel, The Dain Curse.

Before Hammett's legendary private detectives, Sam Spade of "The Maltese Falcon" and Nick Charles of "The Thin Man," there was Hamilton Nash, "The Dain Curse's" private investigator, who is most closely patterned after Hammett's own background and identity and, with a stroke of brilliance, the film's producer, Martin Poll, has cast, James Coburn, as the private dick with a sharp eye and dulled optimism. When asked if any innocent people were hurt, he responds..." there are no innocent people.") Isn't Coburn enough of a reason to see this movie? As Ham Nash, he not only acts the part perfectly, he looks the part... just like Hammett, with the trim, full moustache and raked fedora with the flourished brim. His wardrobe is impeccably reproduced as are all the details in the film, to utilize the nostalgic pizzazz of the '30's prohibition era. The movie takes its own steep turn-around from the sultry and somber film noir look the crime novels inspired. Instead, The Dain Curse film adaptation is bright, colorful and peaked with high-gloss cars, clothing, cigarette holders and faddish cults. All of this is shot as I like it...at and on location in New York City, Pennsylvania and our lengthy, picturesque, own Long Island.

The Dain Curse (1978)
Screening Date: May 13, 2000

In this first novel, Dashiell Hammett created the pattern of the hard-nosed private eye, whose calloused heart goes out to the very young, spoiled woman in deep trouble because of her naive openness and this pulls him into a series of bruising contestations with gangsters, weirdos, nettled relatives and well-meaning friends. This prototype served as a model and standard for writers like Raymond Chandler who went on to embellish and expand.

At the film's opening James Coburn as Nash is seen walking briskly in Manhattan...it's a sunny Autumn morning. He narrates voice over: "I was working all night on a two-bit case that turned into something bigger... you see, I was trying to find out where a big shot bootlegger had an underage, runaway girl under wraps... At a rumrunner's warehouse there was a shootout..the big shot got a bullet in the arm but I got the girl. At $12.50 a day, how was I to know the big shot, bootlegger, who played house with an underage girl, was also a member of the vice commission. City Hall made him a Knight in shining armor and my name was mud again." Nash works for the Dickerson National Detective Agency (Hammett worked at Pinkerton's) and his local boss, played by veteran actor Paul Stewart, commiserates. He tells complaining City Hall Nash has been sent to Toledo but, quickly, assigns him to a diamond heist from a wealthy family. there he meets the "quirky" young girl that will set his adventures into motion. She is nude under sun tan lamps. She smiles strangely... and here we go! Who "stole" the diamonds, who framed her father's death and is her mother unbalanced... mentally. Is her mother and she, as ancestors of the Dain Family, be plagued by the Curse that strikes the women of the family? Nash doggedly persists. Every time, the girls' problems seem over, he hangs in and sure enough, wham! another violent murder.

A coloratura cast is neat enough. Nancy Addison is the hazed and hazy girl. Jason Miller is a vastly prissy writer and family friend. Jean Simmons is a gorgeous Cult administrator. Hector Elizondo is a Long Island sheriff in riding breeches and happily, there is the oh, so photogenic Island itself.

I look forward to reenjoying this attractive bit of mayhem at the equally glamorous Ross School library at 18 Goodfriend Drive off Route 114 East Hampton..for some stylish bloodletting.

Guy Jean de Fraumeni, is the producer, writer and director of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS and European feature films. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey who is presently hosting with him the above mentioned Dan's Paper's "They Made the Movie Here" Film Festival.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

It has been documented that Mother's Day is the single most popular restaurant day of the year. So who is there to cook? There is always breakfast to prepare and a treat at home could be – breakfast in bed?

From six to sixty or beyond, anyone, at any level could handle some simple thin pancakes to fold over like a crepe and serve with sliced banana and fresh berries. Or perhaps, classic Norwegian Buttermilk pancakes browning and puffing up on the griddle then drizzled with maple syrup might tempt mom.

Eggs Benedict, the classic brunch dish with Canadian bacon on English muffins, unconscionably coated with a rich hollandaise is a dish I just dream about. Yet I would be delighted with a smoked salmon Benedict on brioche toast. And if anyone's listening – pour on the hollandaise. Have a Happy Mothers Day!

BREAKFAST CREPES

This basic crepe recipe can be used in a variety of ways with a variety of fillings.
Yield 16-18 crepes

1 cup all-purpose flour
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 teaspoon unsalted
Sliced bananas and assorted berries for serving
Confectioners sugar
Sweet cream, optional

1. Stir flour into a mixing bowl and make a well in center. Pour in beaten eggs, milk, water, salt and oil. With a fork or whisk, gradually incorporate flour into the combined liquids until smooth. Cover bowl and let rest 1 hour or more, which helps batter spread more evenly when cooked.

2. Melt butter in a small non-stick skillet or seasoned crepe pan over medium heat. Pour excess into the batter and stir it in. Return pan to heat. When butter sizzles, ladle about 3 tablespoons of batter into pan, swirling it to rotate until batter coats the bottom before it sets. Cook each crepe until edges are bubbly and underside is very lightly browned and looks "lacy", about a minute or so. Carefully turn the crepe over and cook about 20 seconds longer. This "second" side will be less attractive than the first. Once you get going you can make big batches of them. Transfer crepes to a platter, as they are done.

3. To serve, spoon some of the fruit on one half of the crepe, "lacy side" down. Fold over and transfer to a serving dish. Serve two to three per person. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and drizzle with sweet cream, if desired.

Note. If making crepes ahead, stack with a square of wax paper between each crepe. Or cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight. Wrap the stack with aluminum foil to securely cover and freeze up to one month.

NORWEGIAN BUTTERMILK PANCAKES

This classic Norwegian buttermilk pancake recipe is a deliciously simple treat for breakfast anytime. Using a 1/4 cup ladle is useful when making the pancakes.
Yield: 12-13 pancakes 4-inches in diameter

2 cups buttermilk
2 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
3/4 cup whole wheat flour
3/4 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons unsalted butter or vegetable oil
Assorted fresh berry garnish

1. Pour buttermilk into a mixing bowl and add baking soda, sugar, salt, beaten egg and the two flours. Stir carefully to mix. Ignore any small lumps, they will bake out.

2. Melt a sliver of butter or heat a film of oil in a non-stick skillet. Place over low to medium-low heat. When pan is hot ladle in 1/4 cup batter and cook, until bubbles appear on the surface, about 1 1/2 minutes. Flip the pancakes with a spatula and cook about 1 minute longer or until cooked through. Continue making pancakes until batter is used up. Recoat the pan with butter or oil, if necessary, between batches.

3. Serve with fresh berries and maple syrup

Note: To keep pancakes warm, transfer to a platter one layer deep, and hold in a 200 degree oven.

SMOKED SALMON BENEDICT WITH BLENDER HOLLANDAISE

When making hollandaise in a food processor or blender it will keep longer when refrigerated because the elements are more finely bound together.
Serves 4

For the Hollandaise:
3 egg yolks
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon coarse (kosher) salt
Dash Cayenne pepper
1 stick (8 tablespoons) unsalted butter

For the Eggs:
8 fresh eggs for poaching
1/4 cup white vinegar
Bowl of water with ice cubes

To Assemble:
Toasted brioche or English muffins
Smoked salmon slices
Salt and pepper
Fresh tarragon garnish

1. Put egg yolks, lemon juice salt, and cayenne in workbowl of food processor or a blender and process briefly to mix. In a small saucepan melt butter and bring to a rapid boil. Quickly and carefully, pour hot butter through the feed tube of processor or opening in blender cap in a slow steady stream. As soon as the butter is incorporated turn off the machine. Can be prepared ahead and reheated in the top of a double boiler; stir over gentle heat.

2. Place 2 1/2 to 3 quarts water and vinegar in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, then reduce to a simmer. Hold one egg at a time as close to the water as possible, break each egg into the barely simmering water. Move as quickly as you can so the difference in cooking time is not too great between the first and last egg.

3. As soon as the eggs are in the water, drag the bottom of a large slotted spoon across the surface of the water to keep them afloat. Size large eggs will take about 3-4 minutes to poach. Remove from the pan with a slotted spoon and immediately transfer to iced bowl of water. When cold, transfer each one to a clean kitchen or paper towel and trim any hanging edges with a pair of scissors. Poached eggs can be prepared up to a day ahead. Refrigerate, covered. To reheat, lower eggs in a strainer into simmering water for a minute or so and drain.

4. Assembly: Place 2 poached eggs on a thick slice of toast. Drape salmon slices over the eggs and ladle over sauce. Garnish with a sprig of fresh tarragon. Serve immediately.

It's Our Garden WITH ELIZABETH AND CROW MILLER

Pyracantha can be planted either in the spring or fall. Adaptable and accommodating as pyracantha is in so many respects, however, watch out when you're choosing plants. It can be extremely contrary about transplanting, so if possible choose container—grown plants.

But, if you have a neighbor who owns a pyracantha, don't hesitate to try your luck with rooting your own cuttings. July is the best time to take cuttings. For rooting, my favorite method has come to be equal parts of soil and peat moss topped with vermiculite. Make your cuttings three to five – inches long, directly below a node which is a leaf joint. Remove the lower leaves and then press the slips into your rooting mixture. You can root several cuttings at a time in a deep box or cold frame if you have one, but I prefer to pot each cutting individually. Pyracantha just does not like transplanting, so why risk injuring roots when digging up new plants?

Water thoroughly after potting and keep the cuttings in as humid an atmosphere as possible. A large jar placed over each one will help preserve moisture. Keep pots in a place where they will not get direct sun yet will receive good light. When I put the pots into my cold frame, I keep the sash closed most of the time except for about 0^2– minutes each morning. This morning airing gives me a chance to remove any yellowed or fallen leaves.

Cuttings will root in about eight to ten – weeks, but will not be ready to be planted out in the open until the following spring. When you feel that yours are ready to go it alone, soak the pots in a mix of water, seaweed, and liquid fish thoroughly the night before, and again just before you take the cutting out. Then soil, roots and plants will slip out easily like a cake out of pan.

Whether you're the kind of gardener who prunes strictly according to the calendar, or when you have the shears handy, you shouldn't find this plant difficult to manage. Pyracantha can be pruned anytime, the amount depending upon the use to which your shrub has been put. For a hedge, shear it closely so that later growth will be twiggy with dense foliage. Or perhaps you have the space to allow your shrubs to grow

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

Spring, or should I say summer, has arrived with a blast of hot weather, although too hot, too fast. Discussions with several farmstand owners this past weekend provide some hopeful optimism that business will be better this growing season. With warm weather, homeowners are out in full force, buying flowers, horticultural products, and to a lesser degree, some food products. It amazes us how undereducated consumers are about seasonality of products. People stop at the farmstands in May and want to know where they can get Long Island sweet corn, strawberries, basil and other items not yet in season. I guess we have a long way to go with education about agriculture.

As we get further into spring, there are a number of Farm Bureau activities coming up. In particular, my staff and I are looking forward to an upcoming all-staff meeting with our colleague's upstate. New York Farm Bureau has arranged for one of those team-building retreats this month for all state and county staff. I'm sure, by now, you have heard of them. They have been featured in several television sitcom plots. While they may make fun of them on TV, it has been proven that these workshops do teach co-workers to work together as a team in a more efficient manner, and that always works to the benefit of any organization or company.

We will be going to an educational center in the Adirondacks later this month. This particular "camp" offers a "TEAM Challenge Ropes Course", a tool used to "enhance group development and personal growth through fun & interactive initiatives, team building low ropes, and challenging high ropes" according to the brochure.

Basically, using skills such as problem solving, communications, teamwork, and trust, we will have to traverse a variety of challenges. Phase One, as it is called, will be games and initiatives that are meant to "awaken the senses, break down barriers and most importantly, create screams of laughter." Phase Two will be the low ropes activities, during which we will need to use all those above-mentioned skills to get our entire team through the course. Phase Two will push the envelope for me, personally the high ropes. Testing our individual abilities, we will have the opportunity to overcome obstacles over forty feet in the air! Hmmm.

This whole experience is meant for us to realize that "team" means a lot of things, such as there is no "I" in "team." The other concept I personally think is important is trust. We have to trust each other and have confidence that they will be there for us as individuals when the stakes are high. We all have different talents and abilities, but together as a team we can succeed.

Joseph Gergela III is executive director of Long Island Farm Bureau.

naturally. The graceful, arching branches are indeed lovely.

I mulch my pyracantha the year—round. For summer, a two inch mulch of coco shell mulch is sufficient. Coco shell's are an attractive light brown color and will keep moisture from evaporating from the soil while not preventing water from penetrating into the ground. In winter you'll need a deeper mulch of straw or leaves to keep plants adequately protected. Unless rainfall has been plentiful during the autumn, make sure that the planting is given at least four heavy soakings before frost arrives. This is important because when the ground is frozen hard shrubs cannot draw moisture from it.

And what can you plant that will get along well with pyracantha ? Lilac, another spring-flowering shrub, will be quite compatible since it too is fond of a sunny location and an alkaline soil. Try iris, carnations or phlox for summer – blooming perennials that will make an attractive foreground planting. Among annuals, alyssum and nasturtiums make a good choice.

Pyracantha is ideal for foundation plantings. Also a fast-growing, good-looking hedge, it will assure privacy. It can be used as a vine and is excellent for espalier since its long branches make tremendous growth in a season or two and can be easily trained. Or, you can allow this shrub to grow naturally. Unrestricted by pruning, it makes a rounded, wide-spreading, many-stemmed plant up to 12—feet.

Whether you choose pyracantha for its spring flowers, winter foliage, or autumn berries, I think you will enjoy it. Besides isn't it fun to see something so pretty grow faster than the weeds ?

Selling A House?

The real estate merket in the Hamptons is booming. You mention to a friend that you're selling your house. Word spreads quickly, and you have 300 buyers waiting to make you an offer. Only in a perfect world would it be this simple to sell a home without a real estate professional.

Sellers are taking advantage of today's technology and are developing Websites to market their homes. But hits to their sites are sporadic and they do not have the resources to determine whether a potential buyer is qualified.

Increased competition has also made it more important for people to know all pertinent facts about their home before putting it on the market-often a time consuming task. A recent report showed that only thirteen of 100 sellers successfully sell their homes themselves.

Listed below are some benefits to working with a real estate professional and tips to help sellers know what to look for when choosing a broker/agent, courtesy of Century 21 Real Estate Corporation.

Maximize Sales Price

Sellers who market their own property typically settle for "any buyer" whereas a real estate agent can locate the "best buyer" by creating competition throughout the agent community.

Attract More Qualified Buyers

Real Estate professionals strive to bring only pre-qualified buyers, someone who has worked with a loan officer to determine whether he or she can qualify for a mortgage before making an offer. Sellers who are anxious to sell may accept an offer without knowing if the buyers can qualify for a mortgage.

Guard Against Misrepresentation and Litigation

It is crucial that all matters relating to the property's sale, including physical conditions, history and zoning be accurately and comprehensively disclosed. Realtors possess the necessary information that comforts buyers, sellers, and their attorneys.

Market Your Home Successfully

Most real estate professionals can customize how each house is marketed relative to competing homes, including advertising, yard signage, open houses and a competitive market analysis. Some services, such as the CENTURY 21® Customized Marketing System, go beyond standard marketing by offering an Internet marketing program, national advertising campaign, global referral network, seller service pledge, quality service survey and 1-800-4HOUSES hotline.

Provide Buyers With Lifestyle Information

Buyers often demand a high level of information that real estate professionals specialize in sharing. This makes the seller's job easier since he or she may not have the resources to provide such information. Many real estate agencies have websites, such as www.century21.com, that help buyers search across the United States for information on schools, housing, climate and much more.

Present Property "Professionally"

Real estate professionals are trained to present property objectively. Sometimes, buyers become suspicious of a homeowner's eagerness to sell, interpreting it as overselling or defensiveness.

When looking for a realtor, be sure to find one that can answer your questions, provide you with courteous and responsible service and can offer more to the potential buyer. For instance, through the CENTURY 21® Connections program, CENTURY 21 sales associates offer services such as mortgages, home warranties, and home security systems. Some offices can assist with the connection/disconnection of utilities.

For more information on CENTURY 21 and the Connections program, log on to the website at www.century21.com.

Don't Think Your A Hero?... Think Again!

Each day, babies are born fighting for their lives. And every day, the March of Dimes helps them to win. With the help of volunteers, we've achieved advances like:

• The polio vaccines.

• Neonatal intensive care units that rescue babies so small they fit in the palm of a hand.

• Pioneering prenatal surgery that corrects certain birth defects before a baby is born.

• Dozens of tests and treatments like the PKU test, nitric oxide therapy, and surfactant therapy that give babies the chance for a healthy life.

When you join WalkAmerica, you're a hero for babies because your efforts support March of Dimes research and programs like:

• The search to find ways to use healthy genes to cure birth defects through gene therapy.

• The March of Dimes 3-year national Folic Acid Campaign to tell women everywhere about the importance of taking folic acid before conception and in early pregnancy to help prevent birth defects of the brain and spinal cord.

• The fight for health insurance for the more than 11 million children who have none.

• Investigation into what causes premature birth, and how it can be prevented.

You're a Hero When You Walk to Save Babies

What is March of Dimes WalkAmerica?

WalkAmerica is the walk that saves babies. The March of Dimes biggest fund-raiser, WalkAmerica supports lifesaving research and community programs that save innocent babies from birth defects, low birthweight and infant death. Since its beginning in 1970, WalkAmerica has raised more than $1 billion to help babies be born healthy.

WalkAmerica will take place in beautiful, scenic Sag Harbor on SUNDAY, MAY 21 at Foster Memorial Beach.

How do people sign up for WalkAmerica? It's easy. Call 1-800-BIG-WALK or (516) 496-2100.

OUR MISSION

The mission of the March of Dimes is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality.

The March of Dimes carries out this mission through programs of research, community services, education, and advocacy.

Saving Babies, Together

President Franklin Roosevelt established the March of Dimes in 1938 to save America's youth from polio. His premise was that people can solve any problem if they work together. He created a partnership of volunteers and researchers. And within 17 years, the Salk vaccine had been developed and polio was on the run.

That dynamic partnership has endured. And it's what makes the March of Dimes work. With the help and support of the American people, the March of Dimes has saved the lives of millions of babies over the past 60 years. And we won't stop until every baby is born healthy.

Today's Challenges, Tomorrow's Victories

Today, the fight to save babies goes on. Researchers, outreach workers, educators and advocates form a nationwide network of people who are working to make a difference through the March of Dimes. Together, they take on the threats that jeopardize the health of our babies.

Babies need cures, treatments, preventions. Parents need information and answers. Both need champions – everyday people who show they care in a million different ways. People, who believe, like FDR did, that when we work together, we can achieve the impossible.

WHAT TO DO BEFORE GETTING PREGNANT

Unplanned pregnancies happen every day. In fact, about half of all pregnancies are not planned. That's why you should get enough folic acid every day if there's any chance you could get pregnant. Research shows that, if all women of childbearing age took enough folic acid every day, up to 70 percent of serious birth defects of the brain and spinal cord could be prevented. The key is to take folic acid before getting pregnant.

The most reliable way to get the recommended amount (400 micrograms) is to take a daily multivitamin, in addition to eating a healthy diet including foods rich in folic acid, such as orange juice, green leafy vegetable, whole grain products and fortified breakfast cereals.

To help ensure that more American women consume the daily-required intake of folic acid, in 1998 the March of Dimes launched a $10 million multi-year national folic acid campaign. The March of Dimes also heads up the National Council on Folic Acid, which is comprised of forty of the country's leading maternal and child health organizations who are working together to reach as many women as possible with the basic message about preventing birth defects with folic acid.

For more information call the Long Island March of Dimes (516) 496-2100 or visit our web page at www.limarchofdimes.org.

VINCENT CANNUSCIO

Supervisor, Town of Southampton

Vincent Cannuscio, supervisor for the Town of Southampton, has invited town supervisors from across Long Island to join him in WalkAmerica to raise funds to support lifesaving research and programs to help make sure every baby gets the chance for a healthy start in life.

Be a hero for babies. Join Supervisor Cannuscio on Sunday, May 21 at Foster Memorial Beach in Sag Harbor. To register or for more information, call 1-800-BIG-WALK or (516) 496-2100.

MARCH OF DIMES WELCOMES SUSAN LUCCI AS SPOKESPERSON

The March of Dimes is pleased to welcome Susan Lucci as this year's celebrity spokesperson for the 2000 National Ambassador Program.

Lucci has a long list of movie and television credits, most notably her 29-year Emmy Award-winning performance as Erica Kane on All My Children.

In addition to her career, Lucci stays busy outside the studio. She is the proud mother of a son and a daughter, and is actively involved in several children's charities.

This year, Lucci will be joining the efforts of the National Ambassador in raising awareness about prematurity and low birthweight and ways to prevent them.

POLICE BLOTTER

A 45-year-old Southampton man was at the Hess gas station in Southampton when he was attacked by two other men. The attackers hit him over the head with an unknown object and repeatedly beat him about the face and body. They then took approximately $300 in cash from his person and the keys to his 1987 BMW. Left without the ability to start his car, he started to walk home when the two key keepers approached him again, this time in another vehicle. They offered to sell him his own car for $200. He actually agreed and got into their car and went to an ATM. After buying his own car, he was brought to a field where his BMW sat with flat tires, a broken windshield and body damage. At this point the man decided to call the police.

A high school senior reported that somebody threw a brick though the back window of his Dodge pickup. Seems he had $2,500 in cash in the center console that was taken.

In Montauk last week, there was a special marine unit training conference at the Montauk Yacht Club. Somebody with an apparent dislike for marine police officers, destroyed 17 tires on nine police vehicles. Some of the punctured tires were quite expensive, such as the $1,700 a piece tires on a Hummer.

An resident of Treescape Drive in East Hampton reported the theft of several household items. Among them were a full set of dishes, a dual turntable, a crystal bowl and a Thomas Otte statue. The items are valued at $3,000.

More dishes were reported missing in Montauk. The Cleveland Avenue resident moved in from Texas over the winter, and when she unpacked last week she noticed that some boxes were tampered with. Eight boxed were cut open, and besides the aforementioned dishes, some sterling silver, some cookbooks and an entire set of encyclopedias were also gone.

The awning at the Montauk yacht Club was damaged when a West Islip man drove his Nissan under it, forgetting about the three bicycles atop his roof.

Ceriello Fine Foods in Wainscott was burglarized but only $80 in loose coins were taken. The change snatchers also took $25 worth of chicken cutlets.

A Sag Harbor resident reported that some unknown "locksmith" had Krazy-Glued their lock shut. It was reported that this is an annual occurrence, happening every time the house is opened for the season.

At the Canoe Place Inn in Hampton Bays, Jordan M. Delacruz, 19, of Port Jefferson was arrested by town police and charged with criminal mischief in the third degree. According to police, Delacruz admitted to breaking the back window of a Chevrolet Tahoe. Police said he was highly intoxicated. Delacruz told police that he smashed the window because he was, stressing over his girlfriend.

A Springs man was attempting to load a lawn tractor onto a trailer, when he crashed it into another mower already on the trailer. George F. Morgan, 54, of Hog Creek Lane, struck his head on the other mower, sustaining cuts to his face and left eye. He was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated.

A Bridgehampton man noticed his telephone was out, as was his cable and went to investigate. The Narrow Lane resident discovered that somebody had cut the phone and cable wires coming into his house.

Dan's LETTERS

A MEXICAN FIDEL?
Dear Dan,

I found Martin Theodore's letter on Cuba in your April 14, edition a most valuable treatise on U.S.-Cuban relations being controlled by Cuban votes in Florida. I visited Cuba in 1957 before Castro, and found a society controlled by guns and money, with a tremendous gap between rich and incredibly poor. I dearly love the people of Mexico, where I vacation quite often, and the theft of the country's wealth and resources by Mexican government officials and police breaks my heart. I often wonder why a Mexican Castro has not arisen. Whereas Mexican public officials and police wallow in stolen wealth, no one, including Miami Cubans, has ever accused Castro and his government of enriching themselves. Yes, it is a Communist dictatorship, but certainly no worse or more repressive than that of China, but there are no Chinese voters to pander to in Florida so the Cuban nonsense goes on.

STARK NAKED?
Dear Dan,

It takes me a long time to voice a complaint. Last summer there appeared in your magazine an ad for Gurney's Inn which pictured a man and a woman holding hands and skipping into the ocean stark naked, photographed from the rear. Literally. I found this ad in a general interest magazine very objectionable and out of character in Dan's Papers. I would cancel my subscription if I could.

I hope that you do not have similar ads in the future because I do enjoy Dan's Papers.

POSITIVE FEEDBACK
Dear Dan,

I read your article about the Ebay situation and tracked you down to leave positive feedback, but they have it all worked out that it must be transaction oriented and since I sell and buy on Ebay, I tried to give you a positive feedback to no avail. I am sorry the Ebay world will not see the great praise I wrote, but such is life. See you around town.

Most people in the arts have trouble balancing their checkbooks, a problem brought on by a distant and sometimes adversarial relationship with the practical world of mathematics. But Mark Alexander, the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center's new executive director, is a man with an artistic vision who has his feet firmly planted in the realty of accounting – and accountability. Although his background includes tenures of extreme financial responsibility in several Fortune 500 companies, where he managed the whereabouts of millions of dollars, his real passion has always been for the arts.

"I was an inveterate theatergoer from the time I was a teenager. When I was in college, I always took theatre electives," he reminisces, then elaborates. "I think I always understood the way the arts could affect a person—and affect us as a society."

Still, his first foray into making a living focused entirely on accounting. It wasn't until 1991 that he was able to merge his passion and his skill. "It happened when I was introduced to Ruth Eckard Hall [a performing arts complex that included a 2,200 seat main stage and a smaller "black box" theater] in Clearwater, Florida," he continues. "When I was finally in the environment of a performing arts institution, I knew what I wanted to do and wanted to be. And it's wonderful to be able to work in an environment that you're passionate about."

Mr. Alexander has found his time so far in Westhampton Beach highly exhilarating. "I've met... people, in the community, in businesses. I've gotten to know what's important to them," he says. "And I feel like it's already home."

One of the more formidable jobs Mr. Alexander faces is molding an identity for the WBPAC. He has a clear vision, focusing on the word "center" in its title. "An organization such as this, that came out of the community always has to come back to the community," is his view. "Summer programs of superstars are wonderful and exciting. But what's going to interest us is developing {our} community connections, with community groups. We're a good partner now; we want to become a better partner."

He applauds the ties Joanna Ferraro Levy has forged with local schools, and foresees a closer tie to the educational and artistic community, and in forming a "campus for various activities. These things I see as anchoring the center, so it becomes truly a center," he concludes.

Mr. Alexander, an immensely likable, exhaustingly energetic man, promises to be a force in the arts in Westhampton Beach, and he looks forward to his initial season, which will officially be launched at 9 a.m. May 13, when the box office opens for the new season.

May 13, in fact, promises to be a gala day at the center, with the second annual Dan's Papers Art Auction filling its stage, auditorium and lobby that evening from seven to eleven p.m.

Meanwhile, the remainder of the summer season bristles with blockbusters and variety. Cabaret and Broadway will be served in the separate but equal appearances of Barbara Cook and Bobby Short, Tovah Feldshuh in her recreation of "Tallulah1" and the national tour of the Broadway smash "Pump Boys and Dinettes."

Comedy will be served by, among others, Robert Klein, Joy Behar, Robert Dubac's "The Male Intellect: An Oxymoron?" and "Kate Clinton: Y2K8 Comedy."

Musical evenings will abound. The pop and jazz side will include Ray Charles, Richie Havens, Janis Ian, The Preservation Hall Jazz Band, Dr. John, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, and the Cuban congregation Orquesta Aragon, and the classic dimension will be served by The Chicago Brass Quintet and The Perlman/Nikkanen/Baily Trio.

Dance companies will include the return of MOMIX and the first appearance of the Trinity Irish Dance Company.

Gloria

Title	Operator
Location	Long Island
Background	High School diploma, stay-at-home mom
About working at Bell Atlantic	"When I decided to go back to work, wanted a company with a strong history and an exciting future. That company was Bell Atlantic."

Information/Testing Sessions
Hauppauge, NY
May 18th, 19th & 20th
For openings in Port Jefferson, Riverhead & Southampton

Gloria is unique, but her story isn't. As part of Bell Atlantic's Operator team, she's working in a job close to home, learning new skills, and looking forward to more opportunities down the road. Responsible for helping our customers with information requests for local and national numbers, as well as call completion, Gloria is making a difference and ensuring our customers receive quick, efficient service.

If you are customer-focused, have strong spelling and keyboard skills and operate well in a fast-paced, demanding environment, this might be the Bell Atlantic job that's right for you. And, because many of our Operator Centers provide round-the-clock service to our customers, you'll also need the ability to work a variety of shifts, including nights, weekends and holidays.

We offer a competitive salary, superior benefits (including tuition assistance, pension and savings plans), and opportunity for growth and continuous development. To arrange a convenient time for pre-employment testing, please call and specify Job Code 1100.

Or, schedule yourself for testing by visiting our web site at:
www.bellatlantic.com/jobpost.
Bell Atlantic is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.
All candidates must qualify on Bell Atlantic pre-employment testing.

People are the reason.

They're STILL Talking About Dan's Papers...

"Indispensable — not only for listings and local news and issues, but for its idiosyncratic, witty, commonsensical take on a part of the world in creasingly overrun by (as Dickens put it in Little Dorrit): 'the noisy, eager, forward (i.e. pushy) and vain.'"

—Michael Thomas,
Columnist, N.Y. Observer

"Everyone knows that Dan's Papers and Eastern Long Island are inseparable." —Mario M. Cuomo, Former New York Governor

"Now that the global village has become a nightmare consisting of a hundred million interconnected terminals, each of us helplessly clinging to this network as surely as houseflies to a spider's web, a trip to the Hamptons grants us immunity from the purgatory known as the media highway. There, while resting comfortably among the potato fields of our dreams, one can read Dan's Papers. Dan sits there perched like some ancient bird observing the landscape from above — sometimes ahead, mostly behind — unruffled by the ever present banality disguised as modern communications. "Whenever I'm in the Hamptons, I read Dan's Papers before I go to bed at night, and wake up to the morning birds."

—Len Riggio,
CEO, Barnes & Noble

"I read Dan's articles every week. I'm a fan." —Alec Baldwin,
Actor

"What goes with a nice grilled cheese sandwich and a cold diet Coke at the Candy Kitchen? Why, Dan's Papers, of course." —Don Hewitt,
Executive Producer, 60 Minutes

"Two reasons to read Dan's Papers weekly: first it tells me what to expect; second, if absent, it tells me what I missed (alas!). —Jerry Berns,
21 Club

"The first thing I do when I get to Bridgehampton is buy a low-calorie ice cream and then pick up a copy of Dan's — with these two actions, I begin my weekends!" —Leonard Stern,
Chairman, Village Voice,
Hartz Mountain

* * *

"An indispensable element of the Hamptons."

—Charles B. Scarborough, III
Anchor, News 4 New York

"First I read Dan's Papers then I read the dull stuff—The New York Times, Post, Daily News.." —Irwin Hansen, Creator of the cartoon strip"Dondi."

"Whenever I lament the death of Damon Runyon... I'm comforted by the thought that he's been reincarnated as Dan, moved east and is talking about the character and characters of Long Island." —Gary Ackerman,
U. S. Congressman

"Dear Dan: I visit the Hamptons regularly — and I think of your paper as an institution of the Hamptons. It's everywhere — in stores, airports, at my friends' houses and on the beach."

—Robert Pittman,
President & CEO, America Online

"What would the Hamptons be without Dan's Papers?"

—Michael Fuchs,
Former Chairman H.B.O.

"The computer, the remote control, the fax, Dan's... Where would I be without them?" —Jill Larson, Actress

"I read Dan's Papers and my favorite section is Mickey and Betty Paraskevas' Junior Kroll cartoon."

—Billy Joel,
Pianoman

"Dan's Papers is a constant source of entertainment." —M.G. Lord,
Columnist, Newsday

"Dan has one entertaining and informative newspaper."

—Arlene Alda, Photographer

"It is the first thing I pick up when I come out here."

—Heather Cohane, Quest

"Dan's Papers is a lot of fun and so is the boss." —Ben Gazzara,
Actor

"I think it is great and I look forward to reading Dan's every weekend."

— Francesco Scavullo,
Fashion Photographer

"Dan's Papers is informative, intelligent and – best of all – great fun."

—Susan Isaacs,
Novelist

"Love Dan, love Dan's Papers. They're both a breath of fresh air."

—Tina S. Fredericks,
Realtor, East Hampton

"Dan's Papers is my weekend pleasure." — Stan Herman, Chair, L.I.A.A.C.

"If you are thinking of horsing around in the Hamptons, your first stop ought to be Dan's Papers."

—Tony Hitchcock,
Executive Director,
Hampton Classic Horse Show

"Dan's Papers is as much a part of the Hamptons as the shoreline itself... and every bit as far reaching. No one covers the area like Dan's Papers; the people, the places, the happenings, and – most of all – the flavor."

—Ralph Destino,
Chairman, Cartier

"We think Dan's Papers is the most effective advertising media for the entire East End market. We credit the paper for much of the Hampton Jitney's growth over the past 20 years. I find it in every house I visit and it reaches the year round market better than any other print, radio or video media."

—J. Brent Lynch,
President Hampton Jitney

"Like most things out here, Dan's Papers seems too expensive, although personally I think it is worth every penny."

— Walter Bernard, Designer
